

Congress deadlocked on energy bill

WASHINGTON, Saturday (AP) — Congress, deadlocked on emergency energy legislation, refused to end its 1973 session early this morning.

The House adjourned to come back at noon.

Democratic Senate leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said the Senate would not attempt to adjourn the session, but would go into a series of pro forma meetings three days apart.

House Democratic leaders said they will decide later whether to continue trying to pass some form of energy legislation this year.

The plan had been to pass the bill and then go home until the 1974 session, tentatively set for Jan. 21.

If Congress adjourned the 1973 session, Nixon could recall it.

Mansfield said the Senate has no intention of trying to resolve the impasse. He said the three-day adjournments will continue until Jan. 3 and then the Senate will adjourn until Jan. 21.

A compromise measure approved by the Senate was rejected in the House on a 219-34 vote. The compromise had been approved earlier in the Senate in the face of a filibuster threat by senators from oil-producing states.

The House also failed in two attempts to gain approval of other compromise efforts. One defeated measure would have preserved the House-approved provision to recapture windfall profits from energy companies.

The Nixon administration opposed this provision, its spokesmen arguing that the matter should be left for resolution in January, when President Nixon has said he will offer windfall tax legislation.

The second attempted compromise would have restored other House-passed provisions but not the one dealing with windfall profits.

Senators meanwhile drifted away from the Capitol, making any further immediate efforts at compromise unlikely.

Congress was left with the choice of adjourning without final action on an energy bill or abandoning plans for a full Christmas holiday. Adjournment would invite criticism from Nixon, who has said he must have immediate authority to deal with the energy crisis.

Key senators decided on a compromise after a bipartisan group of senators from oil-producing states, backed by a White House veto threat, blocked action on the massive energy measure Congress has been working on for a month.

While senators spoke to a nearly empty chamber, the real work went on in the office of Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield and the office of Vice President Gerald R. Ford, headquarters for White House officials.

The two groups worked to put together a measure that could clear both houses and give President Nixon authority to take further steps to meet fuel shortages during the month-long congressional recess.

The Senate cleared the year's final appropriations bill—a $1.7 billion catch-all supplemental measure—and a $2-billion measure designed to save seven financially ailing Northeast and Middle West railroads.

The House had passed both bills Thursday.

The House also passed and sent back to the Senate a bill to establish a mandatory 55 mile-per-hour speed limit on federal four-lane highways to cut use of gasoline.

As congressional leaders had predicted, the energy

Congress OKs 11% SS benefit boost

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A two-step, 11 per cent boost in Social Security benefits for 30 million retired or disabled workers, widows and dependent children passed Congress Friday in the waning hours of its 1973 session.

To pay for the $2.3-billion increase, payroll taxes would be raised for middle- and upper-income workers by increasing to $13,200 the amount of wages on which Social Security taxes are paid. This compares with a $10,800 base during 1973.

The House passed the compromise bill 301 to 13, shortly after the Senate passed it 65 to 0. The measure was sent to President Nixon, and White House sources indicated he would sign it.

The first 7 per cent of the increase would come in April checks; with the remaining 4 per cent in July checks. This amounts to an early payment of the automatic cost-of-living advance that would have come in July and January, 1975. The next automatic increase would come in July, 1975.

The average old-age benefit, now $167, would rise to $178 in April checks and $186 in July checks. The average benefit for an aged couple would go from $277 to $296 in April and $310 in July, and the average benefit for aged widows would increase from $158 to $169 in April and $177 in July.

Lower-income workers would be spared any increase in taxes because the present 5.85 per cent payroll tax rate would remain the same. Anyone making less than $10,800 would pay the same Social Security tax in 1974 as this year.

The maximum 1973 tax was $631.80, but under the new $13,200 wage base, the maximum tax would be $772.20.

The bill also increases payments to 3 million aged, blind and disabled adults on welfare who receive special benefits under the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program. Individuals would get an additional $10 per month in January for a total of $140, and couples would get an additional $15 for a total of $210, with an additional increase of $6 for individuals and $9 for couples in July.

The House accepted Senate amendments that would present SSI recipients from losing food stamps or Medicare benefits.

These and other numerous Senate amendments were the reason the bill

Postal rate hike delayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Cost of Living Council (CLC) Friday cut back an increase in postal rates sought by the U.S. Postal Service. The result will probably be a two-month delay in raising the price of first-class stamp from 8 to 10 cents.

The Postal Service, now a semi-independent corporation, had asked the government's price controllers for permission to increase total mail revenues by $1.5 billion, or 13.7 per cent in 1974. The added funds, to be derived from an increase in most mail rates, were expected to help debt-ridden service to operate on a break-even basis next year.

The council, citing its campaign to hold down increases in the cost of living, said it would only allow overall postal revenues next year to rise by $1.3 billion, or 13.8 per cent above 1973 levels.

This is a $236 million cutback, or 15 per cent less than the service requested.

The decision is a difficult one because the Postal Service had made extensive plans for putting its new rate structure into effect in early January when it said it was necessary to cut losses. The preparations included printing millions of new 10-cent stamps.

The council stressed it was not directly interested in the postal rate structure but only in the total revenues the service will take in. However, in recognition of the new rate structure, the council said it "would have no objection" if the service

Weather mild, people frugal Shultz says fuel picture brighter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary George Shultz said Friday the energy crisis does not look as bad now as it did several weeks ago, in part because weather has been mild and people have been conserving fuel.

He said government forecasts of a shortage of 17 per cent of petroleum needs early next year were based on the worst possible situation.

"The figures now suggest the problem is more manageable than the figures we were looking at three weeks ago," Shultz said.

But the energy shortage is still real and still very serious, Shultz told newsmen in a lengthy interview.

In the interview, Shultz also said:

—Most consultants at the Treasury Department feel inflation will be above 6 per cent next year, but he feels it will not be as bad as this year's 8.4 per cent increase.

—Consultants expect real growth of the economy will be between 1 and 2 per cent next year, with some decline in the first quarter.

—The energy crisis demonstrates that the system of flexible world monetary exchange rates

Shultz said it is impossible to predict the exact size of the petroleum shortage and that this is one reason why it is too early to say whether gasoline rationing will be needed.

"I don't feel people have felt any acute pain so far" because of the gasoline shortage, he said, but added they will "feel a lot of pain if there is gasoline rationing."

Shultz indicated the country might be importing more foreign oil than it had anticipated during the Arab oil boycott, but declined to state this unequivocally.

Discussing exchange rates, Shultz said that had the world still been operating with the old fixed rate system, "we would have had a crisis; the fact we did not reflects our belief that flexibility is of some value."

The rates are those at which one nation's currency is exchanged with another. Because of the declining value of the dollar in relation to other currencies, the fixed-rate system was discarded and replaced with a temporary flexible system in which free market forces determine the relative value of major world currencies.

Arab-Israeli clash opens Mideast talks

By Bernard Gwertzman
New York Times Service

GENEVA — The first Middle East Peace conference opened Friday with strong pleas by the United States and the Soviet Union for a permanent settlement that would avoid another Arab-Israeli war and break what Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger called "the shackles of the past."

But hopes that the initial session would go smoothly were dissipated when verbal clashes erupted between Foreign Ministers Abba Eban of Israel and Ismail Fahmy of Egypt, underscoring the wide gulf that separates the Middle East adversaries.

Nevertheless, on this first day, which many speakers called "historic" because Arabs and Israelis were sitting down together to talk peace, the speech-making was finished by dusk leaving today's closed-door meeting to take up how to proceed in starting troop disengagement talks between Egypt and Israel, the first substantive item set for the agenda.

Those talks are expected to begin next month after the Dec. 31 Israeli elections, and probably can be concluded in a relatively brief period.

The peace conference, which developed from the diplomacy that followed last October's Middle East war, was opened officially by U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim in the council chamber of the old League of Nations building. Security was very tight, with every newsmen frisked before being admitted to the chamber's gallery.

Reagan rips allocation plan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Reagan has warned the federal government that California will "seriously consider" withdrawal from the planned fuel allocation program unless major changes are made.

In a letter to Federal Energy Administrator William E. Simon made public Friday, the governor labeled proposed regulations to implement the program as "frequently redundant, unclear and contradictory."

He particularly objected to exclusion of California's $5 billion-a-year agriculture industry, the biggest in the nation, from fuel users who would have first call on available supplies of diesel oil.

"If the current needs are not met, the end result would be lack of food, high prices, loss of exports, and with no substitute for food the end result is obvious," Reagan said.

The eight-page letter detailed Reagan's concerns about the proposals and warned if the problems are not "satisfactorily" dealt with, "the State of California will seriously consider withdrawal from the program."

If the issues "cannot be resolved appropriately in the available time, the state strongly urges that the regulations be withdrawn until their orderly resolution can be accomplished," he said.

Advisers to Reagan said the federal program contains a provision which would allow a state to establish its own fuel allocation procedures and that such a plan would be subject to federal approval.

Aides said the letter was hand-carried Dec. 19 to Simon's office. The regulations were scheduled to take effect next Thursday.

Simon announced Friday he had asked Congress to extend the deadline for as long as a month. He said he received more than 20,000 comments on the regulations announced Dec. 13.

White House calls subpoena 'incredible'

By JOHN HERBERS
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — A spokesman for President Nixon said Friday that the Senate Watergate committee's 60-page subpoena asking for hundreds of White House documents and tape recordings was "incredible" and raised the possibility that Nixon might not honor it in full.

The subpoena, delivered to the White House Wednesday, asks for tapes on 418 White House conversations and telephone calls and for more than 1,000 documents.

Subjects covered are the Watergate burglary, a $100,000 gift from Howard Hughes and contributions made to the Nixon campaign by milk concerns and others.

Further, the subpoena asks for any documents that would link Nixon's brother, Donald F. Nixon, to Hughes, industrialist Robert Vesco and gambling interests in Las Vegas and the Bahamas.

Until Friday, the White House had declined any comment on the subpoena, but it was believed that the President would comply as part of his current effort to make disclosures to the courts and the public.

Gerald R. Warren, deputy White House press secretary, said, "The subpoena has been received. The request is very large and incredible. When we have something to say about this extraordinary request, I am sure that it will be more than casual comment."

Pressed as to whether Nixon would comply in full, Warren called attention to a remark made by one of the White House lawyers that complying with the subpoena might well "shut down the executive branch."

Staff members of the New House investigator says it might not be necessary to prove criminal offenses as a prerequisite to impeachment. Page A-4.

Senate committee agreed that an extraordinary volume of documents and tapes had been subpoenaed. They said that chairman Sam J. Ervin, D.-N.C., had requested a broad spectrum of material that might bear investigation, at least in part, because for a time the White House was providing the material for the courts but denying it to the committee.

One of Nixon's allies in Congress, Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., said the subpoena amounted to a "witch hunt."

"There is not a court in the land that wouldn't recall such a subpoena," he said.

On another matter, Warren said that Nixon did not know about a White House request for a special tax investigation of 575 "enemies" of the administration until he read about it in the newspapers.

The staff of the Joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue said Thursday that the list was given to the IRS by former White House Counsel John W. Dean III on the request of John D. Ehrlichman, former presidential assistant for domestic affairs.

The committee staff said Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz ordered that the request not be carried out.

Prices up 8.4% in year, U.S. reveals

WASHINGTON — The nation's worst inflation since the Korean War continued to grip the economy last month, with food and fuel prices rising sharply, the government said Friday. The Labor Department said consumer prices in November rose eight-tenths of one per cent, seasonally adjusted, matching October's rise. Two-thirds of the increase came in food and fuel prices. "Obviously we are unhappy with this increase," a White House spokesman said. In the 12 months ending in November, the Consumer Price Index went up 8.4 per cent, highest for any similar time span since the 12-month period that ended June 1951. Also, in October, real spendable earnings — weekly pay after taxes stripped of the effects of inflation — actually declined six-tenths of one per cent, the government said.

Storm lashes East seaboard

A "dangerous" first-day-of-winter storm Friday spawned floods along the Atlantic seaboard, driving hundreds of Philadelphia-area families from their homes, and stacked heavy snows on holiday travelers in the Appalachians. Torrential rains combined with melting snow to send streams over their banks from North Carolina to New England. High waters closed sections of the Pennsylvania Turnpike, Schuylkill Expressway and Philadelphia's East River Drive. Harsh cold spread through the Midwest, where deep snow dropped by the same storm Wednesday and Thursday still caused death and hardships. The cold wave spared all the way to Texas' lower Rio Grande Valley where a 20-degree freeze threatened damage to the citrus crop.

Eastern rail network plan

WASHINGTON — The Senate gave final congressional approval Friday to a plan to merge seven bankrupt Eastern and Midwestern railroads, trim away unprofitable branches and rebuild the remaining rail system with government-backed financing. Working with $1.5 billion in federal loan guarantees and $558.5 million in outright grants, a new government corporation would be charged with accomplishing what the disastrous New York Central-Pennsylvania Railroad merger failed to realize: a financially healthy rail system in the East. The Senate approved the bill by a vote of 45 to 16 and sent it to President Nixon, whose signature would begin a 20-month planning process that could result in abandonment of 7,000 to 11,000 miles of rail lines out of the 26,000 miles of trackage involved in the seven bankrupt lines.

Spain buries slain prime minister

MADRID — Prime Minister Luis Carrero Blanco, killed by an assassin's bomb, went to his grave Friday in a funeral cortege saluted by arch-conservative Falangists who vowed revenge and shouted, "Death to the Communist priests!" Carrero was buried amid tight security in the village cemetery at El Pardo near the palace residence of Generalissimo Francisco Franco. The 73-year-old Carrero, who had been Franco's right-hand man, was killed Wednesday when a bomb exploded under the street in front of a church where he had just attended Mass and blew his limousine more than 50 feet into the air.

Cong walk out on talks

PARIS — The Viet Cong delegation walked out of a meeting with South Vietnamese officials Friday in a new disruption of the talks on the country's political regime. Viet Cong delegate Dinh Ba Thi and his aides left the hall in suburban La Celle Saint Cloud chateau in what they said was a protest against U.S. and South Vietnamese attempts to rekindle the war by cease-fire violations. Thi said the United States was illegally bolstering South Vietnam's military forces while a Saigon spokesman claimed Hanoi had raised its illegal force in the South to 500,000 men in preparation for "an early general offensive."

LONDON — Three bomb blasts within 20 minutes spread panic in the heart of London late Friday night and early Saturday. At least four persons were injured, raising to 70 the number of casualties in the current spate of London bomb attacks, which began Tuesday with a car bomb in the city center that injured 54 persons.

Top military court upholds Calley guilt

Combined News Services

The U.S. Court of Military Appeals in Washington voted 2 to 1 Friday to uphold the conviction of 1st Lt. William Calley for the murder of at least 22 South Vietnamese civilians in the 1968 My Lai massacre.

The panel, the nation's highest military court, also upheld Calley's 20-year sentence for his part in the March 16, 1968, slaughter of civilians in the Vietnamese village.

Capt. J. Houston Gordon, Calley's military lawyer, said: "We felt one judge short. Of course we're disappointed."

The judges divided over the key issue of whether Calley should have known any order to kill civilians was illegal and that he had a duty to disobey it.

Calley contends he was ordered by his superior, Capt. Ernest Medina, to kill everyone in the village. Medina denies issuing the order. But military law also states that an order is illegal "if a man of ordinary sense and understanding would, under the circumstances, know it to be unlawful."

The defense attorney said that within five days the defense would petition the court to reconsider its decision. Should that prove fruitless, Gordon said, "I would assume from the statements of President Nixon it would be the appropriate time for him to take up the executive review."

Nixon said in April 1971 that he "would review the case personally." Both Nixon and Army Secretary Howard Callaway have authority either to overturn the conviction or reduce the sentence.

Agnew

"I am going to suffer some," former Vice President Spiro Agnew says about his finances. "But I'm not going on welfare. And I'll be able to make a living."

Interviewed in the January issue of McCall's magazine, Agnew also talks about a speech he made in Los Angeles, shortly before he resigned, in which he said he would not quit office even if indicted.

"Someday I'll be able to explain why I did what I did," he says. "I know that it seems strange after the Los Angeles speech, but someday I'll be able to tell why. And I think everybody will understand."

Agnew was fined $10,000 for tax evasion and still faces possible disbarment in Maryland.

Assassin

James Earl Ray may serve his 99-year sentence for the assassination of civil rights leader Martin Luther King in a federal maximum security prison, Tennessee officials said Friday in Nashville.

He is now being kept in isolation at the state penitentiary here. Prison officials said a move would allow Ray "to lead a little more normal life."

Job's dirty, pay's fine, women find

Diana Baldwin and Anita Cherry have gone underground to dig up more money than they could make on the surface.

Although neither blonde Diana, 25, nor red-haired Anita, 38, weighs over 120 pounds, they are doing what used to be considered men's work at the No. 29 Mine of the Beth-Elk-horn Corp. in Caney Creek, Ky.

Taking advantage of federal equal-employment opportunity legislation, the two women applied for — and got — jobs in the mine shoveling coal, operating coal dust control devices and learning to operate mining machines.

They make $42.75 a day. "We make more in two weeks than we made in a month" above ground, Diana said.

Comedian Bob Hope skipped entertaining troops overseas for the first Christmas in 23 years, but he couldn't stay away from the troops who are still fighting their own personal battles in veterans hospitals.

With a mini-troupe and a mini-band, Hope went onstage at Letterman Army Hospital in San Francisco Friday and told a crowd of 300 veterans and their families: "My wife has arranged everything for Christmas — she's invited the Third Division to our house."

It was a far cry from the troupe of 100 and the crowds of thousands that typified Hope's legendary tours across the military bases and battlefields of the world.

The death of singer Bobby Darin was unobserved Friday in Los Angeles.

The 37-year-old singer, who died early Thursday after his second open-heart operation, left his body to science and no funeral or memorial services were held. Darin had a history of heart trouble, resulting from rheumatic fever when he was 8.

Few aware dying man pilot

For most of the 90 Detroit-bound passengers, an American Airlines flight from Boston began normally enough.

Except when a voice over the cabin loudspeaker asked if a doctor was aboard to treat a passenger.

They didn't know the ailing traveler was their pilot. Nor did they know he would be dead of a heart attack before the plane could make an emergency landing in Syracuse, N.Y. on Thursday night.

The inflight death of Boeing 727 pilot Philip L. Brooks, 50, reportedly was the first such fatality in American Airlines' 38-year history.

Copilot Joseph Hunt told airline officials he glanced to his left to see Brooks slumping forward in his seat, apparently stricken by a heart attack 31,000 feet somewhere above New York State.

Putting the plane on automatic pilot, Hunt used the plane's intercom to put out his call for a doctor. There wasn't one aboard.

But moments later, 65-year-old Marie MacDonald, a retired nurse from Boston, entered the cockpit to offer her help. She was on her way to Saginaw, Mich., to visit relatives for the holidays.

With the pilot placed in a rear cockpit seat, Mrs. MacDonald recalled, she applied first aid and mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Brooks didn't respond, his face ashen and his fingers numb.

The copilot was preoccupied making emergency landing preparations at Syracuse, 20 minutes away, and was able to turn around only once, she said.

"How's he doing?" he asked.

"Not very well, I'm afraid," she responded.

As the plane approached the runway of Syracuse's Hancock Field, Brooks died in Mrs. MacDonald's arms. She said she waited until the crew landed the aircraft before telling them.

Dame Alicia Markova, for almost 40 years one of the world's top ballerinas, lost a $400,000 damage suit against New York's Lincoln Center Friday.

She was told she was only entitled to workman's compensation.

Dame Alicia said she injured her left leg and mouth when she slipped while the center was under construction in 1968. At that time she was director of the Metropolitan Opera Ballet. As a result she has lost, and will continue to lose, income as a lecturer, choreographer and stage director.

Recluse

Howard Hughes, who left the Bahamas nearly two years ago, was believed to be back in that nation of islands Friday, staying at a hotel owned by another billionaire recluse.

The British Home Office in London said Hughes left Britain two days ago for an unknown destination. His six-month British residence permit had been due to expire Dec. 27.

Sources in Nassau reported Hughes had taken over the 12th and 13th floors of the Xanadu Princess Hotel in Freeport, a casino resort on Grand Bahama Island about 60 miles off the coast of Florida. The hotel is owned by recluse shipping magnate Daniel K. Ludwig.

Court affirms drill permit for Palisades test oil wells

Associated Press
A state appellate court Friday upheld city ordinances allowing Occidental Petroleum to drill two test wells in Pacific Palisades.

The three-judge panel of the state District Court of Appeal in Los Angeles denied a plea by No Oil Inc., a homeowner group which contended that the city council gave inadequate consideration to environmental impact when it adopted the ordinances more than a year ago.

No Oil immediately announced it would appeal the case to the state Supreme Court. The appeal will delay drilling if the court issues a stay while hearing the case.

Permanent drilling at the site would take months and possibly years. It would require new council approval and a possible environmental impact report.

Construction of a drill site at Pacific Palisades has been halted since last February by a stay issued by the Supreme Court. Attorneys said the stay would be lifted within 60 days if the case is not appealed.

Ordinances adopted by the City Council in October 1972 empowered Occidental to drill the test wells from a single site north of the mouth of Protero Canyon off Pacific Coast Highway.

No Oil contended the council should have required an environmental impact report before adopting the enabling ordinances. The council failed to order the report on grounds that there is no evidence that test drilling would have a significant impact on the environment.

That finding was upheld by a Superior Court judge last January and again Friday.

Former Mayor Sam Yorty said Friday's decision "vindicated my judgement" in supporting the Palisades drilling. Yorty has come under fire recently with the disclosure that he once owned 1,000 shares of Occidental stock at the same time the drilling permits were issued.

Oil tanker shift reason disputed

Union Oil Co. and Los Angeles City Department of Water and Power officials Friday denied earlier reports that a lack of oil storage facilities in the Southland had forced diversion of a tanker to Guam.

The tanker Sansinena 1, with a half-million-barrel cargo of Indonesian crude oil, was directed Monday to fuel-impooverished Guam by the U.S. Interior Department's Petroleum Allocations Office.

A Union oil official Friday said the oil cargo on the diverted ship was not specifically destined for the DWP. The vessel was to have moored at the San Pedro Marine Terminal Dec. 28.

went to Guam was not the vessel with the DWP cargo. Another ship would have been available."

The spokesman explained there were mandatory and voluntary federal allocation programs imposed on the oil industry. Under the voluntary system, he said, Union was "taking care of 1972 customers."

"DWP was not a regular customer in 1972... they are not a basic customer of ours nor a long-term 'historical' customer," he said.

The DWP's Hyska said that on Nov. 9, 1972, the department had ordered 400,000 barrels of low sulphur fuel oil from Union. There were deliveries of 98,054 barrels of the amount before the end of 1972, and the remainder was delivered this year.

How many employees must a board and care home with 168 beds have to be licensed in this state? I've called a dozen government offices, but all I get is the run-around. M.D., Long Beach.

There is no set number of employees that applies to all nursing homes. The state requires that each board and care home or convalescent hospital have "sufficient help to meet its needs," according to a spokesman for the California Department of Health. Before a home is licensed, an investigation is made and the state sets a required employee total for that particular facility. If you feel that the home you refer to doesn't have a sufficient staff, you can file a complaint and it will be investigated by the appropriate licensing agency. Complaints against non-medical board and care homes with 16 or more residents should be filed with the California Department of Health, 107 S. Broadway, Los Angeles, Calif. 90012. Board and care homes with fewer than 15 residents are inspected by the Los Angeles County Central Registry of Adult Care Facilities, 1819 W. Sixth St., Los Angeles, Calif. 90057. Convalescent hospitals are regulated by the Los Angeles County Health Facilities Division, 241 N. Figueroa St., Los Angeles, Calif. 90012.

Understaffed?

There is no set number of employees that applies to all nursing homes. The state requires that each board and care home or convalescent hospital have "sufficient help to meet its needs," according to a spokesman for the California Department of Health. Before a home is licensed, an investigation is made and the state sets a required employee total for that particular facility. If you feel that the home you refer to doesn't have a sufficient staff, you can file a complaint and it will be investigated by the appropriate licensing agency. ## Non-crime grounds 'may suffice'

Doar reviews impeachment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John Doar, the new House Judiciary Committee investigator, said Friday it might not be necessary to prove criminal offenses as a prerequisite to impeaching President Nixon.

Doar, appearing with Judiciary Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J., on the NBC-TV Today show, said he had not made up his mind whether it would be necessary to show Nixon had committed criminal acts, but "a considerable body of (legal) authority says it does not have to be a criminal offense" to justify impeachment.

An impeachment proceeding is not a criminal trial, he said, although

"many of the elements of fairness" of a trial must have a place in impeachment "and the Judiciary Committee will see that they do have a place."

The appointment of Doar advanced the pace of the House impeachment procedure. House GOP Leader John Rhodes, Ariz., said that if the House voted for impeachment, Nixon should consider resigning rather than face trial by the Senate.

Rhodes told reporters earlier he believed the Judiciary Committee, with its Democratic majority, would likely call for impeachment. He said he felt an impeachment inquiry became "as inevitable as night and day" once Nixon had fired Archibald Cox as Watergate special prosecutor.

Jerome Waldie, D-Calif., who filed an impeachment resolution in October, said Friday he has received more than 20,000 letters and about 88 per cent support for impeachment. Waldie's statements contrasted with Vice President Gerald Ford, who said, before leaving for Spain, that he saw a "tremendous falling off" in pressure for Nixon's impeachment or resignation.

"The response clearly indicates to me that the American people are deeply concerned about the situation in which our country finds itself, and I believe they are demanding more than ever before that their government function more openly, more honestly and more responsibly," said Waldie.

Humphrey admits claiming $200,000 in tax deductions for donating papers

By AL EISELE

Our National Bureau WASHINGTON — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., disclosed Friday that he claimed a total of $200,000 in deductions on his federal income tax returns between 1969 and 1972 for personal papers donated to the Minnesota State Historical Society from his four years in the vice presidency.

Humphrey said all the deductions were made "according to law" and that all returns claiming those deductions were audited by the Internal Revenue Service.

In addition, Humphrey said he paid more than $200,000 in federal income taxes and about $26,000 in Minnesota income taxes in the four years in which the deductions were claimed.

HUMPHREY said all the papers he took deductions for were donated "absolutely and irrevocably" to the historical society prior to the 1969 change in tax law which prohibited taking such deduction.

"I have claimed deductions of $199,153 for papers contributed by me which were accumulated during the vice presidential years," Humphrey said in a statement.

"The deductions were according to law. The papers were delivered within the time frame of the law. And all of my returns claiming these deductions have been audited by the Internal Revenue Service."

Humphrey's deduction is considerably less than the $576,000 deduction which President Nixon took when he gave his vice presidential papers to the National Archives. Questions have been raised about whether Nixon made the gift before July 25, 1969, when the law permitting such deductions was repealed.

Humphrey said he has paid "substantial amounts" of federal and state income taxes and local property taxes each year. He said he paid federal taxes totaling $200,991 in 1969, 1970, 1971 and 1972 — the four years in which the deductions were claimed.

CBS says suit seeks to intimidate

United Press International

The Columbia Broadcasting System charged Friday that the Justice Department brought an antitrust suit against the network in an attempt to inhibit CBS criticism of President Nixon.

CBS filed a reply in the court of U.S. District Judge Robert Kelleher to a suit brought in April, 1972, by the Justice Department against CBS, NBC and ABC.

The government suit alleged that the three major networks violated antitrust statutes by participating in such nonbroadcasting fields as the production of TV series, recordings and other commercial areas.

'Children of God' warn of U.S. destruction

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religious Writer

NEW YORK — In a drizzling rain, a dozen young people clad in sackcloth stood in front of the United Nations on Friday, proclaiming that the United States has only 40 days before it will be destroyed for its evil ways.

The group — members of the zealously regimented "Children of God" — said the Comet Kohoutek was the divine signal of the nation's pending doom.

"America has turned away from God, so God is going to have to destroy it," said Thomas Tripp, 23, of Houston, Tex., a spokesman. He said similar warning demonstrations were held in other major cities, including Chicago, Boston and Washington, D.C.

Besides their mantles of sackcloth, dyed a blood red, the participants had ashes smeared on their foreheads as warning signs of disaster, and held rough wooden rods, symbolizing God's judgment.

They also carried placard-like scrolls, some of which read:

"For indeed Babylon — America the Whore — shall be destroyed with great suddenness."

"Warning to the World — 40 days and then sudden destruction."

The group has advised members to leave the country unless they feel divinely prompted to stay to help care for survivors.

"Those of us who are staying will prepare for a time of confusion," said Pat Massey of Boston. "We're setting up farms as refuges to care for people who turn to the Lord."

The group said it had received instructions from its ruling leader, David Berg, called "Moses" and considered God's prophet, that the comet heralded the end of the United States — by Jan. 31.

"Comets have always been warning signs of great changes and major disasters all through history," said Croll Hunter, 22, of St. Paul, Minn.

As to just how the end will come, they said they weren't sure, but that it would be in the form of physical destruction, such as earthquake, flood or war.

Nathan Longfoot, 19, of Brenford, Conn., among those who are leaving the country, said, "God wants only a few of us to remain here to help afterward, and he definitely has shown he wants me to leave."

He said he's going to Puerto Rico.

The sect, started in Huntington Beach, Calif., in 1966, is tightly controlled, with members put through intensive indoctrination, including memorization of much of the Bible.

They estimate there are more than 3,000 members in this country and abroad.

Critics of the group claim it brainwashes members, some of whom have been forcibly abducted from it in a "deprogramming" operation led by Ted Patrick of San Diego, whose tactics have led to court actions.

Skylab 3 looks at comet

By BRUCE E. HICKS
UPI Science Writer

HOUSTON — The Skylab 3 astronauts precisely aimed their powerful solar telescopes at the comet Kohoutek Friday to see if the "cold and lifeless chunk of matter" contains material from the origin of the solar system.

Flight officials said astronauts Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue had successfully taken television pictures of Kohoutek, an exacting task requiring great accuracy in pointing the battery of instruments.

On Wednesday, they failed to catch sight of the streaking comet on the TV monitors during a similar effort.

"We feel very good that we got comet data through the narrow field of view instruments," flight director Philip Shaffer said. "It really went nice today. The vehicle behaved itself and it really went like a piece of cake."

CARR, Gibson and Pogue also kept watch over an active spot on the sun that was hurling material toward the earth, causing a magnetic storm and the brilliant northern lights.

The astronauts viewed the lights, or Aurora Borealis, caused by the solar particles in the far north and said it looked like Santa Claus was working overtime.

"I'd say there's going to be lots of little kids happy around Christmas time," Pogue said. "The old guy's really working away up there judging from the amount of light he's got."

Four of the solar telescopes collected data on the comet which may tell the makeup of the icy ball slowly melting as it nears the sun.

GIBSON said if they can learn what is contained in the comet, scientists may find how the solar system was formed 4½ billion years ago.

"For the same reason we wanted to study the moon, we are studying the comet," Gibson said during a television show from Skylab. "That is we hope to find just what is the original matter of the solar system."

The comet, coming from the far reaches of our solar system, may also contain material from interstellar space.

Ban on candle with lead fails

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Consumer Products Safety Commission Friday turned down a Ralph Nader group's request to ban millions of Christmas and other candles with lead wicks, but said consumers should be aware they may be needlessly exposing themselves to lead fumes.

The commission said it will continue its investigation but initial research indicates "the amount of lead given off does not constitute an imminent hazard" and the commission will not immediately ban the candles.

"We do not consider limited use of candles with lead core wicks during the holiday season to present an unreasonable health hazard," it added. "However, consumers should recognize that they may be subjecting themselves needlessly to increased lead concentrations through use of the candles."

THE CANDLES involved, sold under several brand names and distributed throughout the country, contain a lead wire around which the wick is wound. The Nader-backed Health Research Group had petitioned the commission for a pre-Christmas ban on the candles, contending that poisonous lead fumes enter the air when the candles have burned, along with minute lead particles which can settle on food.

Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of the research group, said there is "no excuse for allowing any kind of concentration of lead above what most people consider safe. Lead is a health hazard period."

A few hours before the commission rendered its decision, Wolfe had released a study made by the EPA which said that "additional and preventable cases of childhood lead poisoning" could result from the candles being burned. The EPA study urged its top officials to push the commission to ban the candles.

Among other things the EPA said that the candles burned around a child who already had a high lead level in his body "could well place this child at the risk of developing lead poisoning."

Wolfe said consumers who already have the candles should return them to the place of purchase for exchange, and he urged people shopping for candles to examine the top of the wick and avoid buying those with the clearly visible lead wire in the middle of the wick.

Drug spray cans for asthma recalled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) said Friday that thousands of canisters of aerosol drug spray for asthma patients were being recalled because of a leak which could cause heart problems and other adverse reactions.

The spray is the same as one associated with several deaths in Britain a few years ago, but the FDA said there have been no reports of deaths or injuries linked to the current development.

Sold only by prescription, the sprays involved are contained in a metal canister, less than two inches high with a plastic mouthpiece. Asthma sufferers hold the spray to their mouth and release a mist into their lungs which relaxes bronchial tubes and allows them to breathe normally again.

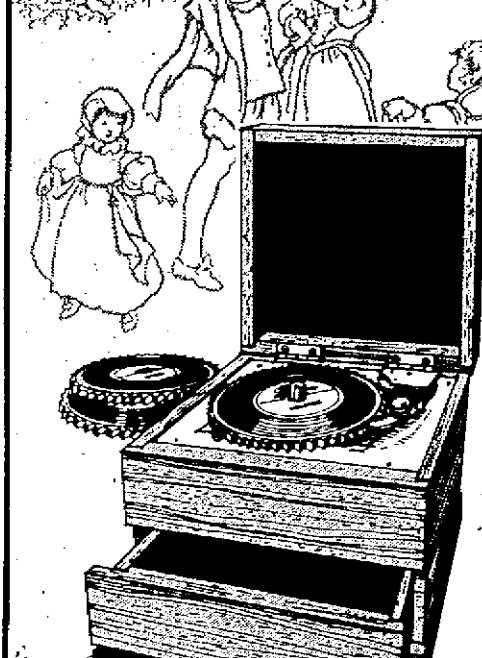

THE FDA said the sprays, 145,000 of which have been sold since 1971, carry no name on them. The aerosol canister is silver metal and contains a blue and white label. There is, however, an instruction sheet provided with each spray which lists the name — "Metermatic Aerosol" as well as the distributor's name — "USV Pharmaceutical Corp." or "Eison's Corp."

The FDA also said that sprays sold since 1968 can be identified by one of the following numbers printed on the instruction sheet or near the metal rim at the top of the canister: 52447, 50894, 48388, 47507, 47250, 46792, 46356, 52446, 48385, 47976, 47506, 46355, 51077, 47974, 47375, 47103, 46781, or 46065.

Merry Christmas

Music-So-Round

Out of the lyrical past comes this merry little music-maker... reproduction of an antique disc box. Six miniature records play sprightly tunes; the box is made of walnut-finish wood. Noteworthy gift for someone musically inclined.

Candlelight will usher in Christmas Eve

By LES RODNEY

Coinciding this year with the energy-crisis reminder that there are limits to profligate man's resources, candlelight symbolizing the arrival of "The Light of the World" will feature Christmas Eve services in area churches Monday.

Music centering on the history-transforming event in a Bethlehem manger, young people's programs and joyous caroling will be highlights of the services, many of one hour duration starting at 11 p.m.

Traditional, liturgy-rich Midnight Mass will be celebrated in Roman Catholic churches. Some churches, particularly Lutheran, will hold family festival services on Christmas Day.

COMMENTING on the meaning of Christmas, Rev. William Miedema, pastor of Long Beach's pioneer drive-in, walk-in church, El Dorado Park Community, said:

"I suppose it sounds complicated and confusing to say that the real meaning of Christmas is God becoming a man so that the human race could have a way back to God—but that is Christmas in a nutshell. You must never forget that Christmas is just the beginning of getting man back together with God. Christ's death and resurrection are the culmination. The Bible does the best job of explaining the whole endeavor when it says 'For God so loved the world that He gave his only begotten son that whosoever believes in Him should not perish but have everlasting life' (John 3:16). To me that is self explanatory."

Citing the same passage, Rev. David Reed of First Congregational Church said: "Christmas, then, is the time at which God wants us to experience a profound new birth of love, genuine Christian love, in our daily lives. After all, God so loved the world—I believe He expects the same from us."

At First Congregational, Third and Cedar, at 6 p.m. Monday, 50 young people directed by Lee Vail and Karyn Schmidt will offer "a brief glimpse into the life of Christ" through an original multimedia presentation including music, dance, drama, slides and scripture readings.

A candlelit "Festival of Carols" will be presented at the El Dorado Church, 3655 Norwalk Blvd. at 7 and 9 p.m., with Don Marsh directing the 150-voice massed choir and a brass section in a wide variety of music, including sections of Handel's Messiah, new arrangements of old carols, and contemporary sounds, with Dorothy Marsh as soloist. Rev. Miedema's Christmas message and a candlelight ceremony will conclude each service.

FIRST UNITED Methodist, at Fifth and Pacific, a service entitled "The Everlasting Light" will be held at 7:30 p.m., with the Bell and Youth Choirs, mixed quartet, duets and solos in the mixture of scripture and carols. Rev. Galal Gough's Christmas meditation will be followed by a candlelighting pageant in the court, singing under the stars—hopefully.

The little children of First Lutheran, 905 Atlantic Ave., will sit on the chancel floor around Pastor Edward Schroeder at 7 p.m. as he tells them "This Baby Was Different." The colors of Christmas will theme the children's service, with carols, narrations, slides, recordings, banners and posters. The traditional Christmas Eve candlelighting service will start at 11 a.m. Christmas Day will be celebrated at 8:30 and 11 a.m.

At East Side Christian, Seventh and Obispo, starting with organ music at 10:45 p.m., a program of anthems, carols and message will feature a string sextet, the Youth Group, and The Disciples, a choral group of college-age young men and women, accompanied by Wilma Snyder.

A candle will be given to each person arriving for the 11 p.m. service at University Lutheran, 1429 Clark Ave., to be lit at midnight. The choir, soloist Fran Parent, congregational singing and Pastor Elder Oscarson's sermonette will be back-dropped by an illuminated Christmas tree with Christmas made by the women. The Christmas window will be illuminated by spotlights. The 10 a.m. Tuesday service will feature the Children's Choir and a Christmas story.

Bethany Lutheran, 4644 Clark Ave., will hold a family service at 7 p.m. and a candlelight service at 11 p.m., with a Christmas Day Festival Service at 10 a.m. with all the choirs.

SCRIPTURE READINGS and the singing of carols will comprise the simple service at 7 p.m. in Geneva Presbyterian, 2625 E. Third Street.

An 11 p.m. candlelight service will be celebrated at California Heights United Methodist, Orange and Bixby, with the music featuring guest artist Marvalee Cariaga. There will be congregational singing and Christmas readings by Rev. George Mann.

At Lutheran Church of the Holy Trinity, Carson and Cherry, the service of lights and carols will include music directed by Nancy Eastman, music major at Long Beach State and organist Mrs. Robert Maxwell, with the Sanctuary, Junior and Youth Folk Choirs. Pastor Brotheim's message: "Getting to Know That Baby."

A family service with the Children's Choir will be held at 7 p.m. in Covenant Presbyterian, Third and Atlantic, with the traditional 11 p.m. carol service featuring the combined choirs.

St. Luke's Lutheran, 5633 E. Wardlow Road, will hold two candlelight communion services, at 7:30 p.m. conducted by the youth with sermonettes, a playlet, "The Fourth Wiseman" and music by Julie Geve-shausen, and at 11 p.m. the traditional Christmas Eve service.

An informal "come as you are" service is scheduled for Christmas morn, 10 a.m. at Grace United Methodist, Third and Junipero, with children and their new toys welcome and "rejoice" as the theme.

AT TRINITY Lutheran of Norwalk, 11507 Studebaker Road, families with children are especially invited to the 7 p.m. service, where the pastor will tell a Christmas story. The candlelight service will be at 11 p.m.

A service of carols will be held at 11 p.m. in Immanuel Lutheran, 345 E. Carson St. At Bethel Lutheran, 700 E. 70th St., a festive Christmas Day worship for the entire family is slated at 10 a.m. Westminster Community Presbyterian, 2474 Pacific Ave., will hold its traditional Christmas Eve service at 11 p.m. At Mt. Olivet Lutheran of Lakewood, 4405 South St., the 11 p.m. candlelight service will be climaxed with holy communion at midnight.

Selections from "Messiah" will be presented at the annual Christmas Eve concert at 10:45 p.m. in Saint Anselm of Canterbury Episcopal of Garden Grove, 13091 Galway St. where there will also be a youth festival choral service at 7 p.m. and services at 9:30 and 11:30 p.m. Christmas Day service is at 10 a.m.

Three identical carol and candlelight services are offered at Holy Cross Lutheran, 4321 Cerritos Ave., Cypress, at 7, 8:30 and 11:30 p.m. Worshipers will enter the church through a mass of evergreens, with teen-agers dressed as carolers singing, a 20-foot tree lit up, flickering candles, poinsettias and banners adding a festive touch. Christmas morning worship will be at 10.

St. Maria Goretti Catholic Church, at 3950 Palo Verde Ave., announces a Christmas Eve Mass at 5:30 p.m., and the traditional Midnight Mass starting at 12. On Tuesday, Christmas Masses will be celebrated at 7:30, 9, 10:30 a.m. and noon.

Our Saviour's Lutheran, 370 Junipero Ave., will celebrate "History's Most Important Happening" at 11 p.m., with a service on Christmas Day at 11 a.m. featuring carols, anthems and hymns.

'Spectacular' heads Christmas Sunday program

"Christmas Sunday," falling this year two days before Christmas, will complete the rich Advent preparatory season with varied programs in area churches.

A musical Christmas Spectacular will be presented Sunday at both 7 and 8:30 p.m. in First Baptist, 10th and Pine. Six choirs will be featured in familiar, traditional and new carols, with accompaniment by bells, harpist Harriet Wood of the Long Beach Symphony, and organist Sam Posthuma.

One section of the concert will feature music by composer-arranger Jimmy Owens with specially recorded taped accompaniment. Another will feature the sounds of children, youth and adults joining in carols, with a stage system built to add to the "Go Tell It On the Mountain" effect. Music is arranged by John Hess, Biola product majoring in theory and composition.

Glad Tidings Assembly, 1900 South St., will present the Christmas cantata "Night of Miracles" directed by Dr. Homer R. Hummel at 6 p.m., with orchestra, soloist and harp helping out. Nursery care is provided.

The "Trek to the Trees" with the trees decorated in gold, red and blue to blend with the Rose Window, will climax both the 9 and 11 a.m. services at First Methodist, Fifth and Pacific, as worshipers bring their gifts for "Christ's social ministries and mission." The Hallelujah Chorus from Handel's Messiah will be sung.

Peterson's "King of Kings" cantata will be presented at the 6 p.m.

Celebrate Christmas in Church

Briefly . . .

'73 called a mixed year; an L.B. teacher 'retires'

And what kind of year has rapidly departing 1973 been in the world of religion?

According to Rev. Dr. R. H. Edwin Espy, retiring general secretary of the National Council of Churches, it has been a year of "mixed directions" without "major public developments or events."

It was, says Espy "the year of Key 73, a major national thrust in the cause of evangelism, a year that saw the publication of the Common Bible with its wide acceptance by Catholic, Protestant and Orthodox Churches, and one in which, despite temporary setbacks, collaboration between Protestants, Catholics and Jews have deepened."

One of the temporary setbacks he undoubtedly had in mind was the rift between the Catholic Church and the Council over the tone of testimony in Congress by the Council against aid to parochial schools.

Espy noted the traumatic political developments of '73. "It was a year of disenchantment in many areas of common public life," he said. "There are those who feel that the problem of political corruption and misdirection is not localized in government as such, but is the reflection of a moral decline in the standards of our people. At root this is a religious problem."

Other trends noted by

Dr. Espy were the decision of the Consultation on Church Union (COCU) to emphasize local unity and action and delay attempts at organic unity; the tendency of laity in some denominations (notably the Episcopal Church and the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod) to assert their authority in determining policy, and the growing appeal of Eastern religions as well as various occult groups on large numbers of Americans, particularly youth.

"Thus," he said, "it is in an especially deepened way that we look forward to this Christmas season and the New Year with its promise of new life to those who yearn for fulfillment."

WITH THE fundamentalist splitoff from the Presbyterian Church in the U.S. (Southern), a fact, plans are proceeding apace for possible reunion with the larger United Presbyterian Church, one of the things to which the fundamentalists objected. The Presbyterian schism occurred along geographic lines at the time of the Civil War.

A revised plan of reunion was worked out by a joint committee of the two denominations last week and will be presented for two years of study to the two churches when they meet concurrently in Louisville next June.

Rev. J. Randolph Taylor of Atlanta, co-chairman of the reunion committee, expressed a "high optimism" for the plan.

"I know it's expected I would be hopeful," Taylor said, "but what I feel is no pro-forma optimism. I sense a feeling in both our churches for ending the division. I'm convinced that the plan the joint committee will offer retains the best of our traditions and at the same time points us toward a new faithfulness and a new church that is more than a merger of the old."

In 1939, Methodism healed a very similar Civil War split between its northern and southern churches.

CHURCHES WHICH have not heard the exciting story of the Long Beach Ethnic School sponsored by the Boyd Memorial Foundation, a project of love and education in memory of the late Rev. Dr. Jesse Boyd of Grant Chapel A.M.E., can contact Mrs. John Hoepfl or Mrs. Roy Burdett, both in the Long Beach phone directory. Either will be happy to tell the story.

WHEN A 62-year-old widow who has taught Sunday School since 1931 finally retires, what does she do?

Well, Gertrude Bolton of 1067 Ohio Ave. said farewell to Long Beach's First Lutheran School last year and rewarded herself with a tour of the Orient and Hawaii. Then someone asked her what her favorite hobby was and she replied "Teaching the Bible."

Instead of going back to the classrooms, Mrs. Bolton applied to go into the field with Lutheran Bible Translators, and in October was assigned to a Wycliffe project in Ecuador. She is spending one year at the Instituto Linguistico de Verana in Quito, then will go into the mountains to handle the education of tribal children, now illiterate. Educated at Concordia Teachers College in Seward, Neb., the University of Nebraska and UCLA, she also studied Spanish at Long Beach State.

Lutheran Bible Translators say there are 2,000 tribes still without a written language. Together with the famed Wycliffe organization, they aim to reach every tribe by 1985. This laudable aim would remain just that—plans and charts on headquarters walls — without people like the remarkable Gertrude Bolton, who at 62 plunges into a new life far from the friends, comforts and relaxation she has already earned.

Wayfarer's Chapel at Portuguese Bend overlooking the Pacific will hold its annual torch-lit procession winding up to the chapel at 11:45 p.m. headed by "Mary and Joseph" in biblical costume, symbolic of the journey to the stable 1,973 years ago.

Special Sunday at Salvation Army in L.B.

Christmas Sunday at The Salvation Army Temple, 455 E. Spring St., event with the addition of the membership of Junior and Senior Soldiers, and a missionary in-gathering at the 10:45 a.m. Holiness meeting.

In the evening the Long Beach Temple Songsters Brigade will present the Christmas Cantata "Night of Miracles" by Peterson. Mrs. Miriam Cassford is director with soloists Mrs. Sylvia Wolkersdorfer, Cadet-Lieutenant Duane Decker, Bob Keene and Phil Dunning. Dave Cassford is narrator and the tableau is by Mrs. Mitchell Sjervén.

The services are open to the public.

'Joy Mass' for retarded on TV

The annual Joy Mass for persons with retardation will be shown again this year on Channel 5, KTLA, at noon on Christmas Day. The response last year was very positive.

Cardinal Timothy Manning will introduce the Mass and give a Christmas Message. The Celebrant will be Fr. Michael Gilman, associate Director of the Department of Special Services for the Handicapped, Archdiocese of Los Angeles.

POSITIVE THINKING

by Norman Vincent Peale

CHRISTMAS CAN BE FUN

Christmas is a season of joy and laughter when the cup of happiness brims over. Yet we hear so many glum and negative remarks about what a burden the season has become.

This indicates that something is wrong somewhere because Christ's birthday was never meant to be anything but a glorious event, one full of happiness.

Perhaps we need to use more imagination in recapturing the experience of Christmas in a personal way. And some creative people are doing just that. For example, the members of one family who, during a financial crisis, made personally, by hand, all Christmas gifts for each other.

A church congregation was asked to bring in all the old clothes they could spare for distribution to the needy. But one family sent all new clothes, bought with money diligently saved all year to buy each other Christmas presents. They got such a kick out of this that others did the same the next year.

SUCH GIVING surely expresses the true meaning of the Lord's birthday. We most truly honor him when we follow the example He set. Actually a self-forgetting act of mercy can give a deeper satisfaction than giving or receiving the most expensive gift. People who have done this have been rewarded with an exciting joy quite beyond anything previously experienced.

Giving at Christmas can take many forms not measured by dollars. Here are a few simple suggestions:

A gift you make yourself may be more appreciated than something bought in a shop — something as simple as a fruit cake or a glass of homemade jelly; a surprise photo of a friend's house, babies or pets. One couple I know surreptitiously painted the porch and front door of their parents' house. To the giver such action is a labor of love, to the receiver an offering of love. When you put yourself into a gift it doubly blesses both giver and receiver.

Another joy-producing enterprise is to send Christmas remembrances to those who would least expect it from you, to the people we often encounter but do not really know — the neighbor who nods good morning daily, the people who clean your office, the police officer who directs traffic at your corner. Best of all, the one with whom you are most annoyed!

Making it a point to establish friendly contact with such people is an enriching experience. Visit a hospital, orphanage, or even a jail at the Christmas season. It will give you quite a charge. Also it is wonderful Christmas adventure to do something for those in trouble.

Often children show us the way to a happier Christmas observance. In one school the sixth graders were told that in many other lands the religious expression of Christmas was much more important than gift giving. These lively youngsters were surprised, and asked:

"How then should we celebrate the holiday?"

THEIR TEACHER suggested they find the answer in the Bible. One boy wrote the answer he found.

"I was hungered, and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink... As ye have done it unto the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me..."

That seemed a good

CHURCH HUMOR

"He claims it's just a group of planets, but I say MERRY CHRISTMAS!"

Peace on Earth top UNICEF card theme

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — It started a quarter of a century ago, with a painting of children around a Maypole.

The painting was by Jitka Samkova, a 7-year-old Czechoslovak school-girl who wanted to express thanks for food she and her playmates had received after the war from UNICEF, the United Nations children's fund.

Jitka's design became UNICEF's first greeting card. U.N. officials sent them to each other in 1949.

The following year, with new designs, UNICEF went commercial. During this holiday season, it expected to sell a record 100 million cards for about $17.25 million in 140 countries, more than a third of them in the United States.

THROUGH the years, UNICEF officials said, "Peace on Earth" themes have led the more Christmas themes as best sellers. One of the season's top designs is an embossed dove of the peace holding a green olive branch, by Canadian Howard Alstad.

Kohoutek linked to light of Bethlehem, 2nd coming

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

As on the first Christmas, a strange "star" tracks the night sky this holiday season, the comet Kohoutek. Speculation long has held that the unusual celestial phenomenon at Jesus' birth may have been a comet.

It so happens that ancient records indicate that a comet appeared in that period and was especially visible in the Near East. But there were other astronomical spectacles around the same time.

These included a series of planetary conjunctions, the dates of which were first calculated by the 17th century astronomer, Johannes Kepler, and also something resembling a "nova," or brightly pulsing star.

In addition, there was the comet of that time.

"Inevitably the present comet will invite comparisons with the strange heavenly signal that drew the wise men from the east to the crib of the infant Jesus," says Rev. Albert Stauderman of Philadelphia, editor of the Lutheran.

"It's easy to imagine what confusion and terror such a strange 'star' could cause among primitive people. Even more sophisticated ones who try to find some meaning in the stars will be breaking out with a new rash of portents.

Indeed, some religious sectors were percolating with such oracles, claiming the modern comet signifies some cataclysmic change.

"Kohoutek is a sign of the second coming of Christ," says Rev. Carl McIntire of Collingswood, N.J., a "most thrilling" piece of evidence.

A pamphlet circulated by the Children of God cult says the comet may mean the end of "present world powers." Declaring comets are "warning signs from the heavens above to the earth" and "have nearly always signalled some major disaster or collapse of empires," the pamphlet advises followers in the United States to leave the country, adding:

"You in the U.S. have only until January to get out before some kind of disaster judgment of God is to fall because of America's wickedness."

Aside from such dire alarms, however, the appearance of a comet is considered as possibly marking the original Christmas, along with other manifestations in the sky.

Paul L. Maier, a classical scholar and historian at Western Michigan University, notes that ancient Chinese records cite a comet visible for 70 days in the spring of 5 B.C., seeming to move westward as the nights wore on.

This is the direction taken by the Magi from the east in their journey to Bethlehem. The comet "could indeed have been the wise men's astral marker," Maier writes in a book issued by Harper's, "First Christmas."

Calculations by the German astronomer Kepler turned up the fact that a spectacular conjunction of Jupiter and Saturn occurred in 7 B.C., and a three-way conjunction of Saturn, Jupiter and Mars in 6 B.C.

Also, according to the Chinese records, a tailless comet, possibly a "nova," a star whose brilliance is increased by internal explosions, appeared in the spring of 4 B.C., a year following the comet of 5 B.C.

Maier conjectures that the remarkable conjunctions of Jupiter, Saturn and Mars, first alerted the Magi, while the 5 B.C. comet underscored their interpretations of a newborn "king," and the nova of 4 B.C. appeared after they reached Jerusalem.

Scripture indicates Jesus then was nearing 2 years of age, allowing elapsed time for the Magi's long trip by camel train. This would put his birth in 6 B.C., which is a likely dating.

Its exact time has been uncertain ever since some early miscalculations in setting up the calendar of the present era. It wrongly puts Jesus' birth in 1 A.D., although it actually occurred several years before as shown by ancient chronologies, including the death in 4 B.C. of King Herod. He was the ruler who ordered all toddlers up to 2 slain in Bethlehem.

L.B. Rescue Mission sets meal, gifts

The Long Beach Rescue Mission will hold its annual Christmas Party for children of low income families Sunday at 3 p.m. The Mission last year gave gifts to 150 children from infants to 14-year-olds. The new toys are made available through concerned individuals, church groups, and "Toys for Tots."

The Mission will again serve Christmas dinner to over 300 men, women and children on Christmas Day. The meal follows services at 10:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. A gift will go along with the ham dinner and home made pie.

New Jewish leader restores the mystical

Reform Judaism, a once highly rationalized arm of the faith, today has a new national leader with a poetic, mystical side to him.

Rabbi Alexander M. Schindler, installed this week as president of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, says: "We have to recapture a sense of the holy in life."

"Man requires this inward life that emanates from a mystical core," the 47-year-old rabbi added in an interview. "The human story cannot be told without the dimension that transcends all logic."

The gray-haired, 5-foot-9 rabbi, who dabbles in poetry as a pastime, said reform Judaism was "hyper rational" when it developed 100 years ago in this country.

"But the imbalance is being corrected," he said. "Mysticism is a vital aspect of religion. If we concentrate only on the social implications of faith, we fail to draw on its essence, on the waters of its source."

A SCHOLAR who for 15 years has directed the national educational activities of reform Judaism, Rabbi Schindler was described by its board of trustees as "a leader in the tradition of the prophets."

The son of Yiddish poet Eliezer Schindler, the rabbi was brought to this country in 1938 as a boy of 13 by his family from Germany in the early years of Hitlerism. Rabbi Schindler said his experience with Nazism was "not grave."

"I only experienced discrimination rather than extermination," he said. He is author of a book by that title, "From Discrimination to Extermination," analyzing the Hitler years of 1933 to 1945.

A World War II combat veteran, he served with the U.S. Army's ski troops in three European campaigns, receiving the Bronze Star and Purple Heart. He still skis for recreation.

He also plays tennis, smokes cigars, is an opera buff and "by nature, a cockeyed optimist. Despair and gloom are not part of my vocabulary," he said.

On the state of the country's religious health, he said: "I see a resurgence rather than a diminution."

There's a 'soul weather' about us.

"I think we're entering an age more amenable to the religious spirit. Increasingly, people are coming to the conviction that religion is essential, that the future of mankind cannot be entrusted to scientific rationalism."

CONCERNING THE national political scene, he said there was a "cold wind blowing in our hearts at the freedom eroded and highest trust betrayed" but there are "countervailing winds of morality."

"The Constitution demonstrated its holding power," he said. "I see beneath the gloom a new buoyancy rising, a kind of hopefulness. There was almost a coup d'etat from within, but the evil decree has been averted. The system has held up."

He said the experience had demonstrated more vividly to the nation the indispensability of religious-moral fibre. "A nation's strength depends on its integrity," he said.

Noting the trend toward more ritual in reform Judaism, he said it's another sign of "less rationalism and more mystery." But he said reform Judaism was "creating its own ritual" rather than simply returning to traditional forms.

Rabbi Schindler and his wife, Rhea, live in Westport, Conn., and have five children. He succeeds Dr. Maurice Eisendrath, who headed the reform movement for 30 years and was on the verge of retirement when he died at the start of the movement's 100th anniversary convention this month.

Asks relations with E. Germany

The president of the two-million-member United Church of Christ this week called for an end to "automatic, emotional anti-communism" and the establishment of diplomatic relations with East Germany.

Rev. Dr. Robert V. Moss gave his report on his official church visit in November to the Evangelical Church of the Union in East Germany to a convocation of United Church ministers, lay members and ecumenical leaders. He preached in East German churches.

"The time has come for this country to put an end to automatic, emotional anti-communism. In the same way it is our hope that the people of socialist countries will begin to phase out the labeling of everything which seems to threaten them as a product of imperialist capitalism," Moss said.

Deadline for the religion pages is Thursday noon. We cannot consider for publication any material received after that time.

What kind of God is this?

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion-Writer

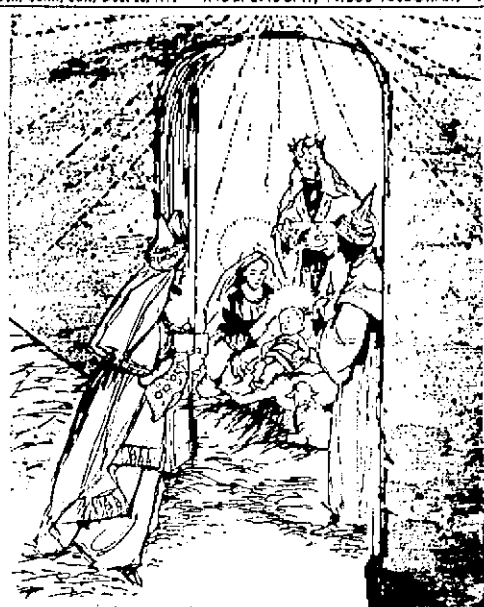

What kind of God is this
Who dared to live among us
Incognito?
He might have come in majesty
So we would know who He was.
Instead, He came humbly
As a baby born to a carpenter's wife
In a stable at Bethlehem.

What kind of God is this?
Who could have come with power,
To punish the wicked
And right the wrongs of the world,
But chose to come helpless
As a baby,
Displaying, even at birth, acceptance
Of humanity's limitations.

What kind of God is this?
Did He not know it would be dangerous
To be merely human?
To lay aside divinity
And live among us, exposed
To incomprehension, hatred and rejection?
Didn't he see where it must lead?

What kind of God is this
Who relies solely on the power of love
To win our wayward hearts?
Is He trying to show us
No matter what we do
To Him or each other
He will always love us,
Forgive us and accept us?

What kind of God is this
Whom Christmas bells proclaim?
Is He too good to be true?
Or do we find Him incredible
Because our hearts are too pinched and fearful
To believe good news?

ASTROLOGERS WORSHIP CHRIST

Entering the house where the baby and Mary his mother were, they threw themselves down before him, worshipping. Then they opened their presents and gave him gold, frankincense and myrrh."
(Matthew 2:7-11)

—From The Living Bible

Says church should be more prudent

The church should be more prudent and modest in proclaiming its authority on some issues, in the opinion of noted Lutheran sociologist Dr. Peter Berger.

Berger declared that "within its own tradition and competence, the church can and should speak with authority, without apology and with self-assurance."

However, he continued, in the late 1960s some segments of church apparently have become confused with regard to its authority in certain areas. The result was a lot of "Words and resolutions now sounding quite hollow."

Christian Science

A HEALING church service.

Going to church can do more than comfort you. Church can be an energizing, healing experience in which fear and sin begin to fade, and new views of God and man appear.

At our services, your love of the Bible grows. Your understanding of God increases. And often, as a result, mental and physical problems are permanently healed.

A Christian Science church service is more than uplifting — it's healing. Won't you come soon?

A VIEW FROM THE TOP of the balcony at the conference room of the Palais des Nations in Geneva, which got under way Friday, shows an empty bank of chairs which were reserved for the Syrian delegation. The Mideast Peace Conference opened on schedule despite the boycott by Syria.

MIDEAST PEACE CONFERENCE

Arabs, the meeting was delayed for 41 minutes before an agreed compromise could be achieved on where the six participants — Israel, Egypt, Jordan, the U.S., the Soviet Union and the United Nations — would sit in the circle of seven tables. The seventh table, that of Syria, was vacant because of Damascus' decision to boycott the conference.

As expected, Kissinger, who has just concluded his second trip to the Middle East, stressed the American desire to act as a mediator in the Arab-Israeli dispute.

In his opening statement, Kissinger avoided taking sides and urged the parties to put aside propaganda and past resentments and work instead for a realistic peace.

"Peace must bring a new relationship among the nations of the Middle East," he said, "a relationship that will not only put an end to the state of war which has persisted for the last quarter of a century, but will also permit the peoples of the Middle East to live together in harmony and safety."

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, who served Friday as co-chairman of the conference with Kissinger, also called for a peaceful solution because "there is hardly any doubt but that new military and bloody conflicts in the Middle East will take place in the future as well unless the root causes of the tension that reigns there are eliminated."

Gromyko also held out the possibility of restoring relations with Israel which were cut after the June 1967 war. He said that the Soviet Union recognized the right of every state in the Middle East "to live in peace" including Israel. He recalled that the Soviet Union had supported the establishment of Israel's independence in 1948.

But in contrast to Kissinger's attempt to remain even-handed in his speech, Gromyko publicly supported the Arab cause. He joined Fahmy and Jordanian Premier Zeid el-Rifai in demanding Israel's withdrawal from all the territory occupied since 1967, and blamed Israel for the "intolerable situation" in the Middle East.

Yet, despite the public attack on Israel, Gromyko agreed to a private meeting Friday evening with Eban, the first time such a high-level contact had been held since 1967. Gromyko seemed interested in keeping Moscow's options open, particularly since the U.S. has now restored ties with Egypt and is in the process of doing so with Algeria and Syria.

During the conference, however, because of Gromyko's pro-Arab position, and Kissinger's neutrality, Israel appeared isolated, with no other party specifically supporting her.

This noted by Eban who complained that there was "no real symmetry" at the conference because of the Soviet bias on behalf of the Arabs. Fahmy, in a rebuttal, said "Israel is alone and completely isolated, completely isolated."

Kissinger said that the U.S. would make "a determined and unflagging effort" to find an acceptable "formula" for peace. He then listed a four-point American approach:

— The current Middle East cease-fire must be "scrupulously adhered to" even though it was fragile and tentative.

— The separation of Egyptian and Israeli forces was "the most immediate problem" because it would not only reduce chances for renewed fighting but would also build confidence between the two sides.

— In addition to the disengagement talks, which stem from the suspended Egyptian-Israeli military level talks at Kilometer 101 on the Cairo-Suez road, he said that the peace agreement had to include the following elements: withdrawals of Israeli forces, recognized frontiers, security arrangements and guarantees, a settlement of the legitimate interests of the Palestinians, and a recognition that Jerusalem "contains places considered holy by three great religions."

"The negotiations must be 'realistic' between the parties themselves, but the United States will 'help facilitate these talks in every feasible way, to encourage moderation and the spirit of accommodation.'" He said that Washington would make concrete suggestions to advance the talks, but any settlement must be acceptable to all the parties.

GROMYKO, in his speech, said that the peace conference must work out "a concrete and realistic program" in line with previous Security Council resolutions — a position shared by Kissinger.

He also stressed that any agreements must be achieved by the parties themselves, and that any documents signed at the peace conference "must have the strength of law."

EBAN, who was irked by the strong tone of the Egyptian and Jordanian speeches in the morning, delayed his remarks until the afternoon to give him time to add some tougher rebuttal language. But essentially, his speech repeated Israel's contention that "there cannot be a return to the former armistice lines" which existed prior to the 1967 war.

He also stressed the need for what he called "an attitudinal change" by the Arabs so that peace "does not rest on the cold formalism of documents alone."

Today will be devoted to closed-door working sessions. It is not expected that the conference will continue much beyond the weekend before recessing for the new year.

3 suspects, $37,000 in cocaine seized

Undercover investigation led to the arrest Friday of three Southland men and the seizure of a half-pound of "almost pure" cocaine by federal and city officers, Torrance police said.

The suspects were arrested as they allegedly sold the cocaine to undercover Torrance officers in the parking lot of a market at Pacific Coast Highway and Rolling Hills Road.

Police said the cocaine has a street value of about $37,000.

The suspects were identified as Jack Hawkins, 22, of 25901 Viana Ave., Lomita; Julian Monarque, 26, of 510 Agate St., Redondo Beach, and Wayne Anderson, 19, of 133 Vista del Parque, also Redondo Beach.

Record crowds jam travel depots; thousands stranded

United Press International

Record crowds jammed into airliners, trains and buses across the nation Friday in the rush to get home for Christmas. Snow and rain storms in the Midwest and on the East Coast stranded thousands of travelers in depots and terminals.

Harried travel managers threw away schedules and put on the roads, rails and in the air any equipment they could lay their hands on in an attempt to cope with the surge in business.

The start of the winter school vacation Friday signaled the beginning of the Christmas-New Year holiday crush. Public transportation officials said it's worse this year because of travelers switching from their cars due to the gasoline shortage.

Amtrak, the semipublic passenger train corporation, said it was turning away people in Kansas City, Washington, D.C., the Midwest and on the West Coast despite putting every available car into service.

Foul weather and massive traffic jams in Washington, D.C., made hundreds of travelers late for planes. A United Air Lines spokesman said as many as one-fourth of passengers with confirmed bookings did not show up.

Snow storms in the Midwest threw airline schedules way off. Hundreds of travelers were stranded at the Lambert-St. Louis airport.

Robert Beaton, 20, a soldier on standby for a flight to get home to his wife in Portland, Ore., for Christmas surveyed the jam-packed terminal where he has been sitting on the floor for two days and said: "The way it looks now I'll be here for another two or three days."

Airline booking clerks at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport, Kansas City, Buffalo, N.Y., and other airports were inundated with huge crowds. The three major airports serving New York City metropolitan area reported they were coping with the first big crowds of the holiday season.

Greyhound put an extra 500 buses into service around O'Hare in Chicago. A bus line spokesman in Kansas City said, "We're running out of buses." Passengers were standing even on long distance runs.

In Dallas, Tex., a Greyhound official said there were no problems but added: "I think the worst will be over Monday... until Christmas night."

Boston's two major bus terminals were so packed there was barely room to stand. Rain storms and ice-slicked highways were fracturing schedules. Robert Laporta, traveling with his wife and three children to New York, said: "Frankly, if I knew there was going to be this kind of mob scene over here I think I might have driven."

In New York City, bus lines and railroads appeared to be on top of the situation despite heavy rainstorms.

POSTAL RATE BOOST

achieved its revenue reductions by a delay in putting the higher rates into effect "until approximately March 1, 1974."

The higher rates were scheduled to take effect on Jan. 5.

Since the service already had increased costs under contracts let for 1974, a bigger reduction would have put the service into the red next year.

"The total mail revenues allowed by the council, however, should allow the Postal Service to break even in calendar year 1974 and should enable the Postal Service to maintain effective postal operations for all mail users," CLC director John Dunlop said.

At the same time, the CLC exempted from price controls permanent rates that are put into effect after proceedings before the Postal Rate Commission which are scheduled to commence in early 1974.

The CLC said it reached its decision, in part, from testimony given during two days of public hearings last month on the proposed higher rates.

Council delays steel price hike, OKs scrap iron relief

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Cost of Living Council Friday delayed a billion-dollar price increase requested by the steel industry but allowed a price relief for scrap iron, a vital industry commodity.

Nearly 3 dozen steel companies ranging from U.S. Steel to small specialty producers would have been free to boost prices on a wide variety of products beginning Jan. 1 if the council had not taken the delaying action.

The schedule of increases announced by the companies averaged about 5 per cent and would, if approved in full by the federal price watching agency, add about $1 billion to the cost of steel users in 1974.

Council Deputy Director James McLane said a decision on the increase would be held up "until an in depth analysis of information can be completed." The material was requested from industry officials during two days of public hearings.

Under Phase 4 rules, big price increases by corporations automatically take effect 30 days after notification of the council. The council's action suspends that "30-day clock" for an indefinite period.

In a related action, McLane said steel companies would be allowed to pass through heavy cost increases they have had to absorb because of sharply rising prices for scrap iron.

CONGRESS

measure quickly became the last — and most serious threat to adjournment of the first session of the 93rd Congress, which began last Jan. 3.

The dispute erupted after House-Senate conferees, who had originally agreed on a compromise energy measure Wednesday night, again agreed on a compromise measure.

Democratic managers expressed hope they could pass the measure later in the day but Sen. Paul Fannin, R-Ariz., calling it "absolutely impractical, unworkable," vowed to "do everything I can" to kill the bill.

The chief dispute centered over a provision restricting windfall profits by the oil industry, effective Jan. 1, 1975.

Meanwhile, word was passed that the White House was unalterably opposed to a number of provisions in the bill, most of them added in the House, and it faced an almost certain veto.

Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., criticizing deletion of a ban on U.S. oil shipments to Southeast Asia, sought to send the measure back to conference so it could be included. That was blocked, 38 to 23.

A similar provision is in the $73.7 billion defense appropriations bill, which cleared both houses Thursday.

In other action, Congress sent President Nixon a bill providing a method for distributing sewage treatment construction grants among the states and providing no state would get less than it was allotted in 1972. The House took final congressional action by voice vote.

Standard Oil rejects charge that it is pirating Navy's field

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Standard Oil Co. of California said Friday that its new Tule Elk Oil Field, which adjoins the Elk Hills Naval Petroleum Reserve, underlies Standard's private property and its development is legal.

A. B. Bristow Jr., vice president for production in Standard's Western Operations Inc., refuted allegations made Thursday by Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., that the Tule Elk development is "tapping" the Navy's oil reserves.

Moss contended the Standard drilling is forcing the Navy to drill costly wells to protect its buildings.

"The new Tule Elk Oil pool underlies Standard's privately owned land, and we are free to develop it without restriction, just as any other similar property owned by a private citizen."

"Navy's nearby wells indicate the new oil pool may extend into the Naval reserve to a limited extent. However, Tule Elk is a new oil pool and is not part of the previously known productive pools of the reserve," Bristow said.

Bristow denied there ever has been a gentlemen's agreement between Standard and the Navy that the oil company would not drill on its lands at Tule Elk, as Moss claimed.

Let us pause...

Sometimes in the hustle and bustle of Christmas the true significance of the season is forgotten. The Christmas season, favored among Christians of all nations, is a time of joy and the renewal of friendships old and new... a time to remember the birth of the Prince of Peace, born in a stable. Never was royalty greeted with less pomp and circumstance. The living spirit of Christ brightens the most ordinary and commonplace tasks of the day, our homes, our places of work, the whole of our lives.

Let us pause to remember the Christ Child this Christmas, to visit the church of our faith and consider again the miracle of His birth. May the spirit of hope, and peace and love prevail in our hearts to give this Holy Day its fullest meaning.

We at Patterson & Snively Mortuary wish our many friends and neighbors a Merry Christmas. May the spirit and good will of the season dwell in every heart and home.

Conference assails Vets' check snafu

By BOB SANDERS
Staff Writer

Coordinators of veteran's affairs from the 12 college and university campuses in Orange County Friday demanded emergency legislation on both the state and federal level to straighten out a mess which has snarled Vietnam veterans' subsistence checks.

Meeting at Cypress College, the coordinators, whose job it is to provide liaison between veterans and the administration, vowed to flood the Nixon Administration and legislators with telegrams in order to get action.

They said at least 1,000, possibly 2,500, veterans in Orange County colleges have not received subsistence checks since school started in September.

"We know of 1,000," Robert J. Ash of Santa Ana College said at the meeting "and there are probably another 1,500 we haven't heard from."

THE COORDINATORS, meeting before an audience of about 50 persons, each pledged to send a telegram from their campus, containing names of veterans who have not been paid and to urge individual veterans to send appeals directly to the President and members of Congress.

The plight of many veterans who have not received checks was described in detail by the coordinators and members of the audience. Many have been evicted from their homes, suffered cancellation of their car insurance and are living in their cars, using food stamps for food.

The coordinators, as well as the veterans present, accused the Veterans Administration of incompetency in handling the checks and of adopting a "don't care" attitude toward the veterans themselves.

"Whenever we send anybody into the Los Angeles Regional office," several coordinators said, "the most common answer they get is 'We can't find your file.'"

"Most of the veterans say they don't think the people in there care about finding them either."

However, Gordon Elliott, director for the Southern California region of the VA, blames it all on a "computer foul up" and said his office is working 24 hours a day to "get the checks out by Christmas."

THE COORDINATORS, through the Orange County Veterans Coordinators Association, sent a telegram to five congressmen and California's two U.S. senators, Dec. 7 informing them of the problems and requesting them to attend Friday's meeting.

Rep. Richard T. Hanna sent a representative to the meeting, Rep. Andrew J. Hinshaw wrote a letter pledging support and Sen. Alan Cranston telephoned his support.

No word was received from Reps. Del Clawson, Charles E. Wiggins or Craig Hosmer or Sen. John Tunney.

"We were hoping to get a little better response than that," said Ash. The coordinators said a new liaison system with the Southern California regional office was set up at the end of November under which "we were supposed to get answers to queries within a week."

They said that 60 requests have been sent in since the first of December but that they have received no answers so far.

AT THE END of Friday's meeting the coordinators placed a call to Washington, D.C., in an effort to reach President Nixon. Instead, they got Odell Vaughn, chief of the Benefits Division of the Veterans Administration.

Vaughn told them that the VA staff was working overtime to get the checks out and that his office would be working through Christmas Eve.

He added that 1,200 emergency checks had been mailed from the San Francisco office to the veterans in the Southern California region in the last two days.

Vaughn requested that a list of the 1,000 names of unpaid veterans be mailed to his office in Washington. He said the list would be checked against the 1,200 to whom checks have already been mailed and promised to get them all paid as soon as possible.

Candlesticks make comeback, thanks to crisis

Story And Photos
By DICK EMERY

The real grabber today in the antique shops: a kerosene lamp.

Second hottest item: a candlestick.

"It's the power panic!"

So said the keeper of one of the dozen antique shops which line Pacific Coast Highway in Lomita and Harbor City.

"This is a funny business even in ordinary times," Joanne Adler said Friday in her "Past and Present" shop, where elderly crockery and silverware share display space with old brass beds, tinsy photos, dandy fur collars from 1905, a peacock-feather fan and similar things dear to hobbyists.

"Facing life in the dark, people are getting scared. They grab for an old kerosene lamp like a drowning sailor grabbing a lifeline."

WHERE THEY THINK the kerosene is coming from, if oil can't be had, is a question no one has bothered to answer, she said.

"And candlesticks are selling much faster than horses' bits or old jail keys, two of our former top items. They're way ahead of binoculars and barbed wire."

That barbed wire is no joke, she said.

"We've got barbed-wire collectors," she said. "There are 10,000 of them — really! — in the Western U.S. Six hundred kinds of barbed wire were patented in the United States in the late 1800s. Some kinds bring $100 a foot."

Mrs. Adler said she is saving four dandy kerosene lamps for the shop.

"Just in case worse comes to worst."

Reject 15% in '73 Planners OK 85% of bids

During 1973, the Long Beach Planning Commission heard 148 applications for special zoning permits and approved 126, or 85 per cent, according to a year-end report by Planning Director Ernest Mayer Jr.

Decisions of the commission were appealed to the City Council in 13 cases. Councilmen upheld the decision of the planners on five permits and overruled them on eight, the report said.

Hearings on special permit applications, environmental impact reports, subdivisions, street and alley vacations and curb cuts are conducted by the Planning Commission on the first and third Thursdays of each month.

In addition, the commission met 19 times in study sessions devoted to such things as the general plan, now being revised and updated; ordinance modifications or additions; status of public and private projects, and other matters of planning concern.

MAJOR PROJECTS reviewed and approved by the Planning Commission during the year included revisions of the model codes for the Department of Building and Safety and the Fire Department, the St. Mary's Hospital master plan, the Poly High Neighborhood Development Plan, establishment of a modification committee to hear minor zoning matters, an ordinance providing for environmental review of projects and an increase in fees.

The commission also reviewed final plans for the new City Hall-Main Library, heard progress reports on general plan studies and reviewed individual elements, reviewed preliminary plans for the Westside Industrial District, and reviewed the Oceanside project.

More than half of the 148 applications for special permits involved use of property, or a combination of that and some other exception to zoning regulations, Mayer's report said.

Forty-three applications concerned use alone and 37 involved use and some other exception.

The "use" applications concern situations where the property owner wishes to establish an activity which is not permitted under the existing zone. For example, an R-2 residential zone permits only two dwelling units on a lot. If an owner wished to erect three or more units, he would have to get a special permit.

SIMILARLY, THERE are varying degrees of commercial zones — C-1, C-2 and C-3 — and activities authorized in a C-3 zone may not be allowed in a C-2 or C-1 zone.

Other requests involve such things as yards, parking and lot coverage. City zoning regulations specify how much a building must be set back from the property line, how many off-street parking spaces must be provided and the maximum amount of the lot that may be covered with structures. Any variation from these limits must have a special permit.

The one subject on which the Planning Commission denied more applications than it approved was signs. The planning director is authorized to pass upon signs, based primarily upon their suitability in their proposed surroundings, but an applicant can appeal to the Planning Commission if he is turned down by the director.

Five applicants presented their cases on signs to the commission, and all five were denied.

Mayer's report said the commission approved 24 subdivisions, 144 building plans and 16 curb cuts. It also approved 26 environmental impact reports and denied one.

Marchese named to engineer post

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

The appointment of Tom G. Marchese as assistant city engineer of Long Beach, effective Dec. 16, was announced Friday by City Manager John R. Mansell.

Marchese has been a member of the city's engineering department for 23 years, and has been a deputy city engineer since 1960.

The post of assistant city engineer has been vacant since last Jan. 1, when Charles S. Thompson was promoted to city engineer.

Marchese was born in New York in 1924. His family moved to San Diego in 1937, and he attended San Diego High School. The family moved to Long Beach in 1945 and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nicolò Marchese, still live here.

Marchese attended Long Beach City College in 1945-47, and received his degree in engineering from the University of Southern California in 1949. He took additional courses at USC in landscape architecture, business administration and industrial engineering.

He went to work for the city in 1950 as a draftsman. In recent years, his principal assignment has been with the street and surface improvement design division of the engineering department.

Marchese was principal engineer on the Queen Mary site work and the Pacific Terrace fill, as well as on many local streets and lighting districts.

He is a registered civil engineer, landscape architect, industrial engineer and building designer. He holds a state teaching credential for community colleges and for the past four years has been teaching a night class for adults at Long Beach City College in engineering graphics.

In addition to his professional work, Marchese is a member of the board of directors of Travelers Aid and has been active with the Community Playhouse.

Bellflower planner quits for Bell Gardens post

By RALPH McCLURG
Staff Writer

Gerald L. Tolley, director of planning for Bellflower and former planning director for Cerritos, has submitted his resignation to Mayor J. Kimball Walker to accept a position as city manager of Bell Gardens.

His resignation will become effective Jan. 31 and he will assume his new duties on Feb. 4. Tolley will receive $21,000 a year in his new position. He was appointed to the Bell Gardens position by a 5-0 vote of the City Council.

Tolley first worked for government as a planning technician for San Bernardino County, a post he held from 1959 to 1961. He came to Bellflower the same year and served as associate planner until 1961. At that time he was appointed planning director for Bellflower.

In 1967 he left Bellflower and went to Cerritos, where he was appointed planning director. He served in that capacity during the period when Cerritos was one of the fastest growing cities in the country, returning to Bellflower late the same year.

Tolley, a past president of the Bellflower Jaycees, in 1967 was elected world senator for that organization. He and his wife, Donna, and their two teen-age daughters reside at 3943 Liggett St., Bellflower.

L.B. city offices closed Monday and Tuesday

City offices in Long Beach will be closed both Monday and Tuesday for the Christmas holiday.

City employees normally get off work at noon the day before Christmas, but because it is a four-day holiday weekend this year, the City Council approved a full day off Monday.

The City Council meeting usually on Tuesday, will be Wednesday at 9 a.m.

Trash collection will be on the regular schedule on Monday, but there will be no pickup Tuesday. For the balance of next week, all collections will be one day later than usual. Tuesday's collection, for example, will be made Wednesday.

The same holiday schedule on trash collection also will be in effect the week of New Year's.

Recreation centers in Long Beach will be open from 10 a.m. until noon Monday, but there will be no supervised play at municipal parks and playgrounds.

All emergency city services will be available on the usual holiday schedule.

Operation Christmas goal at halfway point

Contributions to Operation Christmas Friday surpassed the halfway point toward the year's goal of $12,000, Long Beach service groups reported.

The latest donations, totalling $1,100, are a good sign that the annual program, conducted by city service agencies and the Independent Press-Telegram, will bring Christmas cheer to all 2,820 families taking part, according to program workers.

Aim of the operation is to collect cash and materials enough to provide each family with a turkey or chicken for holiday dinner plus gifts for all youngsters.

Contributions, including canned goods, foodstuffs and toys, will be accepted through Monday at the program's headquarters, 854 E. Seventh St., while cash contributions can be mailed to Operation Christmas, Box 2690, Long Beach, Ca., 90801.

Bidder in Cerritos landscape project hit

The low bidder for landscaping Studebaker Park in Cerritos was attacked by the spokesman of an unsuccessful bidder as unqualified at this week's meeting of the Cerritos City Council.

Jerry Cox of Valley Crest Landscape, Inc., Santa Ana, said that Sharecroppers Inc., Orange, did not have the necessary state licenses and lacked the experience to landscape the nine-acre community park. Sharecroppers is a new firm related to Omega Landscape Co. of Orange.

On a motion by Robert J. Witt the council awarded ed the contract to Sharecroppers pending a favorable report from Sacramento.

The council, at its Thursday meeting, postponed action on newly opened bids for the park's community center. Bids were $100,000 and more above the $150,000 estimate. Mayor Frank D. Lee suggested that it might be wise to develop the park's recreational facilities and leave out the building. He opposed drastic reductions in specifications.

The council approved the environmental impact report and the general plan for Sunshine Park, a two-acre neighborhood park to be located adjacent to an elementary school at Vickie Avenue and San Salvador Place. The city and the ABC School District have the policy of combining parks and school grounds.

Mrs. Nancy Strauss urged that area for little children be surrounded by a low fence. The council approved.

The council increased its pay from $150 to $165 per month, the amount allowable under state law for a city of Cerritos' size. The wage increase will not go into effect until after the city election next spring.

Several citizens were presented trophies for placing first in the home Christmas decorations. Because of the energy crisis all outdoor decorations were unlighted in this year's contest.

Reading on open space ordinance

First reading of an ordinance establishing an open space zoning district was heard by the Bellflower City Council Friday night. Public hearing on the open space zone was held two weeks ago.

Areas of the city within the open space belts include the Artesia Freeway, Southern Pacific Railroad right-of-way, the Edison Co. utility easement west of the San Gabriel River channel, the city's 22-acre municipal golf course, Thompson, Caruthers and Simms Parks and a parcel of city-owned land adjacent to Artesia Freeway on Park Street at Lakewood Boulevard.

A resolution setting the hours of the March 5 municipal election from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. was approved by the council.

3 NAVY SHIPS IN FOR YULE

The Navy's Long Beach-based ships Camden, Kansas City and Truxtum will be home for Christmas.

The Camden is scheduled in at 8:30 a.m. today at Pier 16, Naval Station. Sunday, the Kansas City moors at Pier 2 between 2 and 2:30 p.m. The Truxtum is due at 10 a.m. Monday at the Naval Station's Pier 15.

Pentagon says its fuel need underestimated

By MIKE SHANAHAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON — The Defense Department, predicting some military units will be forced to close down and stop training, asked the Federal Energy Office Friday to reduce the 1.5 million barrels of military fuel it plans to divert to civilian use.

Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said energy chief William E. Simon and his staff badly underestimated the impact of diverting the jet fuel from military use to U.S.-based international airlines, which are suffering holiday season shortages.

Friedheim said if Simon's office goes through with the planned diversion there will be forced stand-downs at some military posts. Pentagon officials are reviewing how much flying time will have to be reduced but Friedheim said some combat fighters units might have to be grounded.

At the heart of the dispute, say Pentagon officials, is a belief in Simon's office that the military services control an unlimited supply of fuel to be tapped for civilian needs.

At a Pentagon news briefing, Friedheim described as inaccurate an energy office estimate that the diversion would leave Pentagon reserves at 95 per cent of needs. Instead, Friedheim said, war reserves of jet fuel will be down to approximately 30 per cent by the end of January.

He said Pentagon and energy office officials are comparing statistics, though nothing in Simon's announcement Thursday provided for a review of the decision.

As the energy crisis developed, Defense officials said they were reducing flying time between 10 and 30 per cent.

Pentagon officials from Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger on down were described as furious over the lack of consultation leading to the Simon decision. The fuel actually comes from domestic stocks which the Defense Department had planned to commandeer under the Defense Production Act.

Friedheim said the diversion will mean roughly a one-third cut-back in training and operations across the military services.

Reinecke's crisis plan — 'grow your own oil'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California should create a "grow your own oil" business to help ease the energy crisis, Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke said Friday.

Reinecke, chairman of the state Energy Planning Council, said farmers could plant vast fields of crops with "very high concentrations of oil, such as tarweed," and use the harvest for fuel.

"The gist of my idea is that we should grow our own oil instead of drilling for it," Reinecke, a Republican candidate for governor, said in an interview.

Reinecke also suggested that nuclear-powered Navy ships could be tapped for energy to keep California cities running if the power shortage became critical.

He said aircraft carriers and cruisers could become "portable electric generating systems" which could be hooked up to any big city along the coast.

"It would be expensive, but it could be done by simply hooking up cables from ship to shore," he added. "It is one of the ideas we are looking at for use in case of an emergency. It would be better than shutting down factories."

Preliminary state studies have found his ideas of oil-producing plants and use of nuclear ships to keep cities aglow not to be feasible. But Reinecke told his staff to keep pursuing them anyway.

"MY STAFF begins to disbelieve me" on some of the suggestions, said Reinecke, a mechanical engineer. "But I keep plugging away. I'm enough of an optimist to believe that almost anything is possible if you have a real need to do it."

His staff contacted a University of California researcher at Davis, "but he wasn't very encouraging," Reinecke said. "He didn't feel there was enough yield in the plant. But I don't think you have to jump to those quantitative conclusions so fast."

REINECKE said if a high-yield crop could be found, it could be used for fuel in one of two ways:

—The natural oil could be extracted from the plant and burned in the place of regular oil.

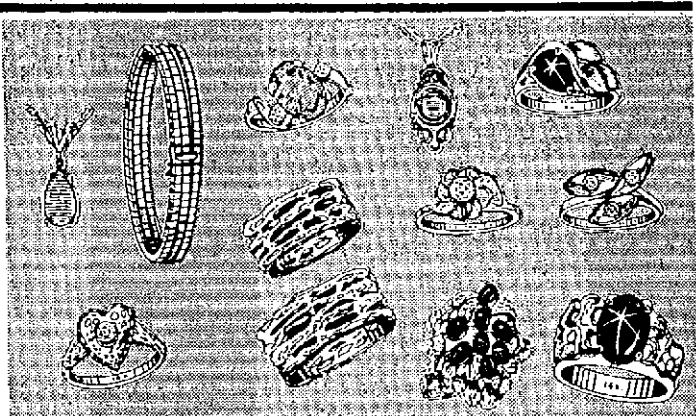

—The plant could be compacted or "pelletized" and used as a substitute for coal "in a stoking kind of furnace."

Gifts for those with everything

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—How about a $2,500 diamond-studded frisbee for the Christmas sportsman? Or a $1,800 automatic drink maker for the man who's too shaky to mix his own? Or a $100 bulletproof vest for the hijack-prone holiday traveler?

If you're still searching for a Christmas present for the person who has everything, don't give up. There are a few choice oddities still available in San Francisco's shops.

For the sea dog, you might try a three-foot-long seashell from the Philippines embedded with tiny brass trees and miniature sea animals made of jade. Only $4,500 at Alfred Dunhill of London.

"That should make any unhappy, howling kid clam up," said a salesman.

FOR THE religious, Shreve's offers an 18-carat gold, handwrought cross with nine amethysts and a dozen diamonds. Price: $8,900.

For "the VIPs on your list," jeweler Sidney Mobell is offering "the new status symbol," a $1.97 yellow fishbone with an 18-carat solid gold disc and a one-carat diamond in its center. The new "status" price: $2,500.

For the holiday drinker, Abercrombie & Fitch is selling an automated bar that dispenses instantly blended drinks when a tapper inserts one of 50 punched cards, programmed for such favorites as martinis, whiskey sours or rum daiquiris. Price: $1,800.

For the nature lover, Gump's has a one-of-a-kind 3½-foot-high crane with a benign gaze for $3,500. "Any child who loves animals would really appreciate it," said Alfredo Soriano feelingly, the store's contemporary buyer.

FOR HOLIDAY airline travelers, George Adams of Morgan Arms Inc., of San Mateo has "just the thing," an ultra-lightweight bulletproof vest "guaranteed to stop most types of pistol and machine gun projectiles from entering critical body areas." The price: $100.

Merry old Yule with 1 mule deer

DENNY (AP)—It's always an old-fashioned Christmas in this tiny Northern California mountain community. No electricity, but lots of togetherness and even a burro who looks like a reindeer.

Denny, 330 miles north of San Francisco as the reindeer flies, is untroubled by the energy crisis. That's because it's never had electricity, a commercial water supply or modern plumbing. There is one telephone in the one-room post office, general store, service station and library that serves the little mining town.

But there was a big Christmas tree loaded with handmade decorations when 35 of the 45 Denny residents recently crowded into the cabin home of Ben and Connie Sanders for a candlelit community Christmas party.

"We may be isolated and living in one of the more primitive areas of California without electrical power or other conveniences, but this just makes everyone closer and more like a family," said John Swan.

Swan played Santa Claus at the party. He toted a bag full of gifts up the muddy, rutted driveway and distributed them to Denny's seven children.

Santa even had a reindeer—Swan's burro, Melody, with a big set of antlers tied securely to her head.

L.A. Philharmonic Ambitious, novel offering

By DAVID LEVINSON
Staff Writer

The Los Angeles Philharmonic's program this week is probably the most novel.

Anton von Webern's "Concerto for Nine Instruments" and Gustav Mahler's "Symphony No. 3."

There are striking similarities and striking contrasts between the composers and compositions.

Webern and Mahler were both Austrian. The music of both is as Viennese as a Strauss waltz. Both were intensely concerned with tone color. Both were concerned with the most delicate relationships between the sounds of different instruments.

The contrasts — all of size — are even more striking. Where Webern wrote one note, Mahler wrote a thousand. Where Webern compressed the melodic essence of his piece into three chords — not even successive tones, but chords — Mahler let melodies sing and expand and repeat themselves. The nine players in the Webern looked lonely on the stage of the Music Center Pavilion Thursday. The orchestra and two choruses used for the Mahler filled the stage to the point where the addition of one cymbal player would have sent a violinist tumbling into the pit.

The performances were not quite as good as the program-making, but they were good enough. What they lacked, essentially, was the Viennese spirit. This lack, oddly enough, was most damaging to the Webern. Concertmaster Sidney Harth played with the intensity demanded, but except for a tender performance of the slow movement the rest of the crew didn't do much more than play the notes.

THE Mahler is a more easily understood work. Because it is less economical in means, it is less demanding of its performers; every line must be in place in an etching, but a mural can tolerate an occasional muddy color.

There were occasional muddy colors in the Mahler. Inner voices were sometimes missing. The several levels of volume the score sometimes asks at the same time were seldom achieved. Slow sections were a shade too fast, and nearly everything was two shades too loud. Conductor Zubin Mehta does not trust slowness and softness to get an audience's attention and draw it into a symphony. But they can work, and in the finest Mahler performances they do.

IF Mehta never surrendered so completely to the music that it was able to work its own will, he did draw from the orchestra a virtuoso performance. And he got comparable performances from the women of the Los Angeles Master Chorale, the California Boys' Choir and contralto Christina Krooskos.

The singers' parts do not have the power of those in the Mahler Second or the otherworldly sweetness of the Fourth — even though the same tune figures in both the Third and the Fourth. Indeed, the Third Symphony is not the artistic success of the two symphonies that frame it, but it has its power and its beauty. The performance by Mehta and company was the loveliest of Christmas presents to the audience. It will be repeated at 3 p.m. Sunday.

UCLA course will show, discuss films

"Sneak Preview: The Director's Cut," a UCLA Extension course beginning Jan. 7, will feature five new motion pictures which will be screened and then discussed from the director's point of view. The scheduled films include Franklin Schaffner's "Papillon," Jan. 7; Sam Peckinpah's "The Head of Alfredo Garcia," Jan. 14; Robert Mulligan's "The Nickel Ride," Jan. 21; Alan Pakula's "The Parallax View," Jan. 28; and Mel Shavelson's "Mixed Company," Feb. 11.

Herbert F. Margolis, author and motion picture writer-producer, will be the moderator.

The fee for the series is $25.

Barrymore, Ruth Roman to guest star

John Drew Barrymore and Ruth Roman take guest-star roles in the Kung Fu episode, "The Riddle," for ABC.

Barrymore plays an immigrant Scot sculptor in a Western town, Miss Roman the widow of a tycoon found hanged under mysterious circumstances.

Nuclear probes 'finger' Egyptian Colossi origin

BERKELEY (AP) — Nuclear fingerprinting has solved many of the mysteries of the 3,000-year-old Colossi of Memnon at Egypt's ancient city of Thebes, a team of Berkeley scientists reported Friday.

Nuclear-age techniques identified the source of the giant pair of stone statues — each weighing nearly 1.5 million pounds in a single block, said Robert F. Heizer, the team leader.

NEUTRON activation analysis helped develop a sound archaeological theory of the incredible 14th century B.C. engineering feat that transported and placed the statues at their Theban site, he said.

Anthropologists and archeologists have pondered for hundreds of years the source and transportation of the huge stones that stand 47 feet high as finished statues of King Amenhotep III.

Each of the enduring quartzite blocks was cut and lifted from the Gebel el Ahmar quarry near Cairo, about 420 miles downstream on the Nile, Heizer and his team reported in the magazine Science.

Then the huge stones must have been moved by barge more than 400 miles upstream in Nile flood seasons to Thebes, said Heizer, a University of California anthropologist for 28 years.

Such a task would have required as many as 1,800 oarsmen and tow rope pullers on the Nile bank, he said.

The team's three-year task started with precise measurements of the twin images of Amenhotep keeping vigil outside the king's mortuary temple. The weight was determined at 720 metric tons, or 1.5 million pounds.

Nuclear chemists from

A UNIVERSITY of California team measures one of the Colossi of Memnon in Egypt as part of the tests that tracked down the huge statues origin.

UC's Lawrence Radiation Laboratory then began the nuclear fingerprinting of samples chiseled from the statues and comparing them with samples from seven quarries in the Nile region.

By bombarding the stone with radiation, the chemical elements and strata of the statue samples were precisely and positively linked to the Gebel el Ahmar quarry, said Heizer.

He reported the team is not yet ready to offer a firm theory on how the Colossi were moved from the Nile bank a mile inland to their pedestal mounts at Thebes.

Heizer said a likely theory is that they were floated by monster barges through an access canal and finally unloaded on land about 1,000 feet from their temple guarding posts.

The final hauling overland must have been on a sledge rolling over logs and pulled by more than 3,500 men, he said.

Weather key seen in Pacific

LA JOLLA (AP)—Scientists will sail into the stormy north Pacific next month, hoping to find the key to weather patterns for all of North America.

Researchers at Scripps Institution of Oceanography and other scientific groups think the key may lie in large pools of surface water in the north Pacific. They say the pools may steer the jet streams, air currents that sweep across the continent and govern temperature and rainfall.

Scripps scientists say a largescale experiment to test the relationship between north Pacific waters and the atmosphere will begin late January.

The first step will be a month-long voyage to the north Pacific storm zone, where research ships and buoys will measure water temperature, salinity, currents, winds and atmospheric temperature and humidity.

Progressive artery hardening seen prevented by new drug

By BRIAN SULLIVAN AP Science Writer

NEW YORK — Early results of a study with a new drug called PDC suggest the drug might prevent progression of the leg arteries, New York Medical College said Thursday.

The drug has been evaluated so far in only 17 patients, all who had undergone vascular surgery for atherosclerosis or hardening. Seven were given the drug for two years while 10 were given a placebo or dummy.

ONLY ONE of the seven given PDC showed progression of the disease. Nine of the 10 given the placebo showed increased evidence of the disease in their peripheral arteries, the center said.

"The number of patients in the study who have completed the two-year prescribed course of treatment is too small to provide definitive conclusions at present about PDC's effectiveness," the school said.

But it also added: "PDC could prove to be a major advance in the treatment of atherosclerosis."

PDC — pyridinolcarbamate — was developed in Japan, work done by Dr. T. Shimamoto and Dr. F. Numano at Tokyo Medical and Dental University.

NEW YORK Medical College said the research grant for the work here, from the Japan Arteriosclerosis Research Foundation, runs through next April, with apparent hopes for a three-year extension.

Further results are to be reported March 4 and 5 at a meeting sponsored by the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md.

NFL squeezes in 4 biggies

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

Santa, you don't have to bring me any Christmas presents. Just see to it that my TV set keeps working, that the refrigerator is kept full and that I don't have to leave the house — or do any chores — while the pro football playoffs and the college bowl games are in progress.

The biggest bowl games are yet to come, but the tube will serve up two National Football League playoff battles today and two more on Sunday.

That should just about blow the weekend. Let those weeds wait, dear.

This morning, it's the Minnesota Vikings against George Allen's Washington Redskins from Bloomington, Minn., at 10 on Channel 2. And this afternoon, at 1, we get the Pittsburgh Steelers-Oakland Raiders contest on Channel 4 from Oakland.

On Sunday, at 10 a.m. on Channel 4, the Cincinnati Bengals take on the Miami Dolphins at Miami, and, at 1 p.m. on Channel 2, the Los Angeles Rams face the Dallas Cowboys at Dallas.

Pregame shows start a half hour earlier in each case.

EDITH BUNKER (Jean Stapleton) tries to enter into the holiday spirit and at the same time attempts to hide from Archie the fact that she has discovered a lump in her breast in tonight's episode of "All in the Family" (Channel 2 at 8). She fears, of course, that the lump is malignant.

Do cancer, comedy and Christmas mix? I haven't seen the episode, so I can't say. But "All in the Family" continues to lead the national Nielsen ratings.

Other shows in the top 10 for the week ending Dec. 16 were: 2. "Frosty the Snowman" cartoon special. 3. "Sanford and Son." 4. "The Waltons." 5. Andy Williams Christmas special. 6. Perry Como winter special. 7. "How the Grinch Stole Christmas" cartoon special. 8. "Maude." 9. "Wonderful World of Disney." 10. "Hawaii Five-O."

The movie "Hotel" was No. 16, "The Borrowers" was No. 19, "Miracle on 34th Street" was No. 20 and "The Glass Menagerie" was No. 37.

WALT DISNEY Productions and NBC will join forces to present four all-Disney "Saturday Night at the Movies" programs in the next two years. The programs will encompass NBC's entire prime-time schedule on each of four nights.

Each program will feature a Disney motion picture, along with a selection of Disney's animated or true-life short subjects, and will last from 8 to 11 p.m.

The first of the four all-Disney programs will air in February or March of 1974 and will present "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea," starring Kirk Douglas, James Mason, Paul Lukas and Peter Lorre. This will mark the movie's TV debut.

A later all-Disney night feature will be the comedy hit "The Parent Trap," starring Brian Keith, Maureen O'Hara and Hayley Mills.

DR. MALCOLM TODD of Long Beach, president-elect of the American Medical Association, is scheduled as guest on blackboard fodder and Olson's troops must be satisfied with convincing Indiana State that Long Beach can, and does, play defense.

The 49ers and Sycamores clash tonight at 8 in the Long Beach Arena. The 49er junior varsity and Pasadena City College meet in a 5:45 prelin. Radio station KGBS-FM (97.1) will broadcast the varsity contest, beginning at 7:50.
Boyd's comment about the 49ers is particularly galling to the Long Beach basketball program because, according to the NCAA statistical service, LBSU ranks No. 1 in the nation over the past season in defense against the field goal. Opponents hit only 39 per cent of their shots against Long Beach. USC isn't in the top 20.
"And we're limiting our opponents to 62 points a game this year," says Olson. "San Francisco scored only 64 points against us, and they're a pretty good basketball team."
The 49ers could make a pretty good case for their defense by making Indiana State their 69th consecutive home court victim.
The Sycamores enter tonight's contest with only a 1-4 record, but two of those losses have been to powers Purdue (81-69) and Oklahoma (65-55).
ISU's starters tonight will be 6-8 Rick Williams at center, 6-7 Carl Macon and 6-5 Rick Peckington at forward and 6-0 Lonnie Abram and 5-11 Steve Phillips at guard. Williams is the leading ISU scorer with a 15.2 average, followed by Macon (14.0), Abram (10.6) and reserve guard Al Armstrong (10.3).
Long Beach's starters will be 6-8 Leonard Gray and 6-6 Roscoe Pondexter at forward, 6-8 Clifton Pondexter at center and 5-11 Rick Abernethy and 6-6 Glenn McDonald at guards.
Roscoe is Long Beach's leading scorer with a 16.0 average, followed by Clifton (15.5), Leonard (13.2) and McDonald (11.0).
Much of Indiana's early-season difficulties have been caused by the team's poor shooting. Williams, at 492, is the only Sycamore starter hitting close to 50 per cent of his shots.
But coach Gordon Stauffer remains optimistic.
"There's no doubt in my mind that we still can have a successful season if we play better together and start putting the ball in the hoop like I know we can," says Stauffer, whose team got off to a 1-5 start last season and then rallied to win 15 of its final 20.
JIM McCORMACK
HOWARD—
the level of competition it faced.
"I would imagine, though, that we're going to need help at nearly every position."
The key to Howard-coached teams is the quarterback, and he has three - Lloyd Michaelson, Dave Dykstra and George Frasier, already in school.
"I don't consider myself a passing coach or a running coach," said Howard. "I prefer balance, to be able to do both, but my teams are usually based around what the quarterback can do. If he is a passer, we pass. If he's an option quarterback, we try to run the option."
"I'm not too familiar with the quarterbacks here now, but I'm not as down on that situation as some of the people I've talked to."
Howard, 42, earned his bachelor's degree at Redlands and his masters degree at San Jose State. He has also coached at Lincoln High School in San Jose, where his teams were 45-15-5 for seven seasons, and at Gavilan Junior College in Gilroy where his clubs were 37-17 in six seasons.
Howard has a wife, June, and a 13-year-old daughter, Kristen.
When does he start to work at Long Beach State?
"Immediately," says Howard.

Sharks fall to Saints
ST. PAUL, Minn. (Special) — Rob Walton's backhand from short range on a picture pass from Mike Antonovich midway through the third period broke a 3-3 tie and gave the Minnesota Fighting Saints a 4-3 win over the Sharks Friday night.
Walton took Antonovich's pass on a two-on-one break, faked out Sharks' goalie Russ Gillow and tucked the puck into the left corner for the game-winner at 8:51 of the third period. The Sharks pulled Gillow with :49 remaining in the game, put on a sixth attacker and nearly tied the score, but Marc Tardif's shot with :15 left hit the post behind Minnesota goalie Mike Curran and stayed out of the Minnesota net.
Earlier in the third period, George Morrison's second goal of the game pulled the Saints into a 3-3 tie. Morrison had put Minnesota ahead 1-0 on a first period power play deflection, but the Sharks rode back for three goals in the second period, two by Ron Walters and Tardif.
Sharks: 0-3-3
Minnesota: 1-1-2-4
Periods: 1st 0-1, 2nd 1-2, 3rd 0-0
Goals: Walters 1:16, Tardif 1:21, Morrison 8:51
Penalties: 1st 1:31, 2nd 1:31, 3rd 1:31
Shots on goal by:
Sharks: 15
Minnesota: 11
Goalkeepers: Walters, Gillow, Minnesota, Curran.

WOODY—
something against George Washington.
"I guess the only one they haven't gone after is Abraham Lincoln."
Hayes paused for breath. "As I put it in my book (You Win With People, $6.95), you don't have something without heroes and you don't have anything without hero worshippers."
"There's so much looking down on things that it frightens me. I concentrate on the good things. Psychologists call it positive reinforcement."
"WE HAVE 99 per cent positive reinforcement and darn little of the other on our football team."
The Ohio State coach indicated his team would need "positive reinforcement" and all the other help it can get to stop USC's passing game.
"We're working like the devil on defending the pass," he said. "There's no denying we haven't faced a good passing team."
"Northwestern was supposed to have a good passing quarterback, but he didn't have a chance against us. Michigan hurt us some on passes, too."
Someone noted that Michigan's Dennis Franklin had hurt the Buckeyes the last two years with passing.
Hayes grinned. "Yes, but he didn't beat us either time."
—Loel Schrader
BOWLING AROUND: USC will practice this morning, make an afternoon trip to Disneyland, then adjourn workouts until Wednesday. "We'll use 12 of the allowable 16 days of practice," said Trojan coach John McKay. Ohio State will practice every day except Tuesday, Christmas Day. "The next three days will be important for us," said Hayes. "We have to get in some hitting. Some of our guys are four or five pounds overweight and we want to get them down."
McKay said the Buckeyes are "twice as good" as last year, when they took a 42-17 pounding from the Trojans in the Rose Bowl. "They have a tremendous defense," said McKay. "It's one of the best I've ever seen in college football."
Occidental tops USC JV's, 85-64
Dave Trotter scored 23 points to lead the Occidental junior varsity to an 85-64 win over the USC JV team Friday night at the Sports Arena.
Occidental JV: 23 Trotter, 15 Raskovich, 2 Ramsey, 14 King, 13 Butler
Scoring: USC: Farmer 6, House 6, Edwards 4, Studdard 4, Wilson 2, Baran 6. Halftime score: Occidental 32, USC 21.

Few signs of shortage

European oil port business booms

By CLYDE FARNSWORTH
New York Times Service

PARIS—Judging from the activity in the ports of Europe and the Middle East, the much-discussed shortage of oil may not be as acute as many thought it would be now — some two months after the Arabs first brandished their oil weapon.

In fact, the tanker loading at Arab terminals and arrivals at some European ports have never been higher. There are even reports of tankers lining up at sea to get into berths.

THE oil stockpiles of many European countries are still at comfortable levels. In West Germany, for instance, there was enough oil on hand Dec. 15 to last 62 days, compared with 59 days on Dec. 1, the economics ministry in Bonn has just announced.

The explanation is difficult to come by. It could represent the stepped up production of some exporting countries such as Iran and Venezuela, higher production by Arab nations than they concede despite their declarations of output cutbacks (Iraq has openly announced plans to boost output), the long lead times in transportation and production (it takes 35 days for a tanker to get from the Persian Gulf to northern Europe), and some exaggeration of the crisis by companies in a bid to get prices still higher.

Information about the actual flow of oil is a tightly guarded secret of the multinational corporations. By this secrecy they have managed, however, to install a de facto system of oil sharing, which governments themselves have not been able to agree to. The companies distribution arrangements have insured that countries like Holland, the Arabs' favored status in the Arab world, and the Arab embargo of Rotterdam, which diverts tonnage elsewhere.

What is surprising is that while Le Havre is up substantially in oil traffic, Rotterdam is not down that much. The Dutch government has stopped publishing oil shipment data, but the Dutch news agency, Algemeen Nederlands Persbureau, last week calculated that 5.6 million tons of oil arrived at the port. This compares with 6 million tons in a normal week.

The figures appear to contradict government statements that oil imports are down some 30 per cent. And since 60 to 70 per cent of Rotterdam oil is Arab oil, it means that either Arab oil is coming in anyway, or that a lot of non-Arab oil is being diverted to Rotterdam.

INDUSTRY sources in Britain said large quantities of oil were coming into Shell Haven, an oil port in the Thames estuary, from Nigeria and Venezuela and were being transferred to relatively small, 15,000 to 20,000 ton tankers, for transshipment to Rotterdam.

Nigeria and Venezuela are reliably understood, along with Indonesia, to have boosted production for Holland.

Elsewhere, the oil storage facilities are so strained at Genoa and other Italian ports that oilmen have apparently radioed tankers on the high seas either to slow down or change their routes.

The North Sea German ports of Hamburg and Wilhelmshaven have continued busy with a spokesman for Hamburg pointing out that tankers are virtually lining up to deliver their cargo.

Industry sources in Hamburg reported that so far the only shortages of gasoline and Diesel oil have been the result of hoarding and of precautionary buying by trucking companies and other big users to build up reserves.

Off Milford Haven and other British ports there have been similar reports of tankers having to wait a considerable period before being able to discharge oil.

Oil companies say the delays are caused for "technical" reasons such as faults in unloading equipment and the need to heat crude oil before it is warm enough to pump ashore.

Some holdups in Britain have also been caused by labor disputes. Last Friday Milford Haven was brought to a standstill while tug crewmen met to discuss the government's rejection of a bonus scheme.

It is not altogether surprising that the European ports continue active in view of information compiled by Lloyds of London, which shows that tanker tonnage sailing from the largest Arab oil terminals has actually increased considerably over the last month.

In the first four days of December, the Lloyds insurance statistics show, the tonnage was up 39 per cent from Ras Tanura in Saudi Arabia, and a spokesman said this rate is "being maintained if not exceeded."

MARMADUKE

By Brad Anderson

"He certainly gets right in the spirit of things!"

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: Transcending personal limitations is the first order of action this entire coming year. For every setback, a new lesson brings a mastery of or a path around the obstacle encountered. Today's natives are strong natural dignitaries, are apt to follow unusual professions where philosophy is an important factor.

Aries (March 21 - April 19): Look at the skies for inspiration. Your share of the community expression is welcome to all, but make it a point to promise nothing you cannot be sure of achieving.

Taurus (April 20 - May 20): This Sunday is both a final touch of a completed cycle in your motoring and the subtle but definite beginning of a new phase.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20): Gather all concerned and go ahead with a fun sort of Sunday. Social activities should feature discussion of the future and how it is to develop.

Cancer (June 21 - July 22): Expansion and growth ought to begin at home, with your own resources, your own expression, then the outward presentation when the time comes.

Leo (July 23 - Aug. 22): Aside from the tendency to take on too many extra chores that take longer than expected, this should be a pleasant, rather satisfying Sunday.

Virgo (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): A look at your budget tips you off to necessary or advisable changes. Late news offers guidelines, encouragement.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): This Sunday can be memorable. Any outreach toward stronger ties draws a greater response, and it very quickly becomes your turn to act further.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): The quieter beginnings, minor changes of habit coming naturally under the stimulating influence of this Sunday turn out later to be turning points in your life.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): Whenever your situation permits, opportunity for communication should be taken up. Moderation is your key to happiness amid lively circumstances.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Avoid attracting undue attention or boasting. Your turn comes later, in full, according to how well you work out today's arrangements for all.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Seek out your friends wherever they're gathered or scattered. Catch up on their news and speak simply of your own. No strict schedule will hold.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20): Concentrate on bringing personal projects to workable conclusions. Relationships are up for evaluation, with serious decisions at hand to consider.

Reform in pension plans

By DON CAMPBELL.

We'll find out, in time, if a law pending in Congress is eventually passed that would permit employees, not covered by a company-sponsored pension plan, to set up their own.

Q: COULD you elaborate on a recent column you had on the employee part of the Keogh Plan?

Does the employee have 10 per cent of his wages, or 10 per cent of the company's profits, set aside for his retirement? Suppose the employe is only hired temporarily and then is discharged for lack of work?

What happens to the amount set aside for him? Where may I obtain a copy of the Keogh Plan?

A: I have to emphasize, first, that this aspect of the Keogh Plan isn't a matter of law, yet. The consensus is that some sort of reform of our pension system will be passed this year, but, of course, it may get backed up somewhat by various committees.

As it stands right now, the only broad pension law in effect is the Keogh Plan for self-employed individuals — professionals, proprietors, freelancers and persons who work at a second job as independent contractors.

The law permits them to set up their own pension retirement plan and lay aside up to 10 per cent of their annual earnings in a qualified program (a mutual fund, an annuity, an endowment or in various other investments administered by banks and insurance companies).

This annual contribution is excluded from taxable income as are all reinvested dividends, interest and capital gains.

The new law, if passed, would permit employees to do the same thing if their employer doesn't offer a retirement program — up to 25 per cent of their earnings (maximum: $1,500 in annual deductions). The company's profits don't enter the pic-

How about temporary employees? As is the case now, companies normally have a waiting period—at least a year and sometimes two or three—before employees are eligible to join the retirement program.

If they subsequently quit, or are discharged (and if they have contributed to the pension) their contribution is rebated to them.

Ask your local Internal Revenue Service office if it has a copy of IRS Publication No. 566 — "Questions and Answers on Retirement Plans for the Self-Employed."

Q: WE OWN our own home (market value approximately $35,000) and are planning to sell it. Since we are building a new home and have plenty of time before it is finished, we are thinking of trying to sell our old home ourselves instead of turning it over to a real estate agent immediately.

Do you know of any pamphlet, or have any words of advice, to prospective home sellers?

A: Yes, two words come to mind: be careful. A lot of home sellers act as their own agents, quite successfully, but please be advised that it can be pretty tricky, and you should never try it, of course, without lining up a reliable lawyer once you have a prospective buyer lined up.

Most disasters in do-it-yourself house selling come at the time of closing, which can be a real horror for the uninitiated.

I don't know whether it's still in print, or not, but your library might have a copy of James F. Bandy's "How to Sell Your Home for a Profit" (Equity Publishers, P.O. 18146, Wash., D.C., 20021) which handles the subject very intelligently.

(Campbell welcomes letters, but can answer only representative questions of general interest usable in this column.)
